

Georgia Favors Four-Year Term, 3 to 2, in Early Returns

Annual Election Plan Trails on Unofficial Tally

Hospital Authority Given Wide Margin in Incomplete Vote.

Incomplete returns from scattered precincts all over Georgia last night indicated the constitutional amendment on the four-year term for governor and other constitutional statehouse officers was being approved by the voters, while the amendment providing for annual sessions of the legislature was running almost even with 8,601 votes for the amendment and 8,678 against.

Fulton county's complete but unofficial vote on the four-year term was close, the voters opposing the long term as they cast 4,306 for the amendment and 4,330 against the amendment.

At the same time early, incomplete returns indicated an amendment calling for creation of a hospital authority in Fulton and DeKalb counties was leading by a wide margin. The vote was 11,111 for the hospital and 3,044 against.

Associated Press figures, compiled from these incomplete returns, showed 18,536 votes for the four-year term amendment, and 12,377 against.

Fulton County Vote. Tabulation of Fulton county votes on the eight state-wide amendments follow:

To give Governor and constitutional officers four-year term, 4,306 for and 4,330 against.

To provide four-year elections for these officers, 4,126 for and 4,089 against.

To raise the jurisdiction of justices of the peace from cases involving $100 to $200, 3,643 for and 1,961 against.

To establish a hospital authority in Fulton and DeKalb counties, 5,318 for and 1,171 against.

To exempt rural electric membership corporations from taxes, 3,206 for and 1,547 against.

To provide a four-year term for state school superintendent, 3,802 for and 1,788 against.

To advertise and promote the historic, recreational natural resources, 3,381 for and 1,421 against.

To provide for annual sessions of the legislature, 2,287 for and 3,374 against.

DeKalb Vote. The tabulation for DeKalb county follows:

To provide four-year terms for the governor and constitutional officers, 850 for and 799 against.

To provide four-year elections for these officers, 843 for and 760 against.

To raise the jurisdiction of justices of the peace, 786 for and 371 against.

To create a hospital authority in Fulton and DeKalb counties, 1,160 for and 184 against.

To exempt rural electric membership corporations from taxes, 629 for and 281 against.

Local Bills Ahead. To provide four-year term for state school superintendent, 669 for and 389 against.

To advertise the state's natural resources, 596 for and 227 against.

To provide annual sessions of the legislature, 419 for and 660 against.

Of special interest to DeKalb county were two amendments.

Blitz Boats Built At New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, June 3.—(AP)—Mass production of a new type "blitz" boat able to transport 25,000-pound tanks and 75-mm guns will start here Thursday, Major E. E. Linsert, of the United States Marine Corps, announced today.

Major Linsert said this is the "first satisfactory type ever developed" for transporting such artillery and infantry equipment and that manufacturing would be done by Higgins Industries, Inc., which is now building motor torpedo boats for defense.

Dozen British Ships Released For War Effort

U. S. Vessels Take Over Empire Shipping to Australia.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—In a new move to strengthen Britain's Atlantic life-line, the United States Maritime Commission announced today that American vessels would henceforth handle all British shipping services from Canada and the United States to Australia and New Zealand.

"This will release a dozen British vessels for Great Britain's own war effort," said an announcement for the commission.

The arrangements for the shift were made by the commission's division of emergency shipping and the British Supply Council for North America.

Neutrality Act. The neutrality act forbids American vessels to carry supplies to Britain, because it is in a war zone, and President Roosevelt has indicated he has no plans to ask changes in the act.

However, such vessels are not forbidden to go to Australia and New Zealand. Putting them into such service and shifting British vessels to the task of carrying supplies to Great Britain or other war zones strengthens the British lifelines without modifying the neutrality act.

During the day Britain's urgent needs in terms of military and economic warfare were put before high administration officials.

Knox Asks "Miracle."

Meanwhile Secretary Knox called upon the nation's warship building industry for a production "miracle," asserting in a speech to a special conference of shipbuilders that the outcome of the war would be determined "by two things—no, one thing—a successful combination of sea and air power."

From the treasury came figures showing peace-time defense spending at a new high level of $27,000,000 daily and a total of $836,606,782 for May. The month's total was approximately five times that of last July when the steady rise in such outlays began.

At the same time, a senate investigating committee learned that a number of new Maritime Commission cargo vessels had been converted into aircraft carriers. Maritime Commissioner John J. Dempsey, who gave the information, said, too, that subsidies to shipping lines were rapidly becoming unnecessary because of the disappearance of foreign competition and so might be eliminated with consequent saving of many millions.

The day also brought from the War Department an announcement

30 Million Asked For Navy Projects

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—Legislation authorizing construction of naval projects at a total cost of approximately $30,000,000 was introduced today by Chairman Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee. Among the projects: Naval operating base, Norfolk, Va.—replacement of marine barracks, $500,000; expansion of facilities at training stations, $5,500,000. Naval hospital, Key West, Fla.—Construction of hospital facilities, including buildings and accessories and acquisition of land, $1,000,000.

Marine aviation facilities, Neuse river, North Carolina—$14,990,000, and expansion of Marine Corps training facilities, $3,500,000.

(This is the first in a series of articles by the executive editor of The Constitution, who is making a 10-day tour of defense industries.)

HARTFORD, Conn., June 3.—Frederick B. Rentschler, chairman of the board of the United Aircraft Company, sat amid the roar of his great airplane engine plant today and made the most important industrial statement of the current war preparation plans.

Mindling Sees End of Georgia Drouth Friday

Heavy General Rainfall Moving From Texas, Forecaster Says.

Drouth-stricken Georgia must wait until Friday for rains which are heavy enough to soak through ground that has been baked by heat and dryness for 40 consecutive days, Weatherman George W. Mindling said yesterday.

For the first time since the crop-killing drouth began last April, weather bureau officials were able to predict a substantial thunderstorm riding eastward from Texas. If on schedule it will arrive Friday, accompanied by cooler temperatures.

Last night a brief shower, accompanied by a 30-mile-per-hour wind, considerably cooled Atlanta. The rain was measured by the Weather Bureau at .10 of an inch, and was described as the "tail end" of local showers which swept across northern Alabama and Georgia during the night.

The Weather Bureau emphasized that last night's fraction of

That's 1,500 Engines.

His Pratt & Whitney plant manufactures four engines, 450 horsepower, 600, 1,200 and 2,000. The latter engine, the Twin Wasp, gives to the United States a motor equal, if not superior, to any pursuit engine developed in European warfare. His plant turns out now a million and a half horsepower per month and within a short time will be producing each month a total of two million horsepower.

Translated into engines, this should be about 1,500 engines per month from this one plant.

Moultrie Put On Faster Time To Save Power

Experts Meet Here Today To Pool Resources of Many States.

The first Georgia town went on daylight saving time last night as power officials of eight states planned to meet here today to discuss the power emergency and possibly to urge adoption of the faster time throughout the south during the period of the drouth.

Moultrie, Ga., at midnight last night, went on the faster time by proclamation of Mayor Evans Reynolds, and at the same time redoubled its efforts to curtail the use of power by changing all night baseball games to late afternoon and calling upon individuals to reduce wherever possible the consumption of electricity.

At the Ansley hotel today power company officials from eight southern states will meet with Federal Olds, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, to discuss methods of linking the generators of 17 states from Illinois to Texas and from Florida to Pennsylvania in one great power pool.

Such a co-ordinated system, officials here said, though it might not result in greatly increased output would make possible a smooth flow of power to areas where defense industries are located, and where the greatest supply is needed.

However, with rainfall 50 per cent below normal, and reservoirs down by 60 per cent at least, this will not solve the shortage, officials indicated, and cities must continue their semiblackouts and individuals must curtail power consumption wherever possible.

It may even be necessary that

Roosevelt Explains Purposes Of Property-Seizure Measure

War Department's Bill Designed To Assure Deliveries of Defense Articles, President Says; Tells Origin of Proposal.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today that the War Department bill authorizing the government to take over private property useful for defense was designed to assure deliveries of defense articles.

He told a press conference the bill grew out of a problem arising in the Allis-Chalmers strike of a few weeks ago when it was difficult to interpret the language of the provision of the selective service law of 1940 permitting the government to take over private plants which refused to fill defense orders.

Willing—But "If"
The President said the strikers reported they were willing to go back "if"—and the company was willing to deliver "if"—

The President did not continue with the qualifications but indicated the situation did not amount to a refusal under the act.

Signs appeared today that the bill would be modified in congress, especially the provision enabling the President to take "temporary or permanent" possession of property needed for national defense.

This clause had developed into the most controversial point of the bill, offered yesterday by the War Department, and Speaker Rayburn said after a White House conference:

Time Limit Seen.
"I think it should be clarified." The question was whether "permanently" meant "from here on out," the speaker said, and his remarks were taken to mean that some sort of time limit might be written into the measure.

Rayburn was one of several congressional leaders who conferred with the President soon after the latter's return to the White House from Hyde Park.

The property seizure bill would permit the President to take over any or all property, tangible or intangible, that might be deemed

London Silence Seen as Hint Drive Started

Desperate Scramble for Position Indicates Torrid Fight.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Britain and the Axis appeared last night to be struggling desperately for position in a last preliminary to a major war expected soon to set the whole of the Middle East aflame.

On London's side was an atmosphere of such urgent silence, an air of reserve so marked as to suggest to some observers in Britain that imperial forces might already have moved against Vichy-controlled French Syria, the key area of the developing test.

Transports Ready.

There were persistent and circumstantial reports that big detachments of German troops were entering Syria behind groups of "tourists" and that aside from 500 soldiers landed by sea last Thursday at Latakia—just 70 miles from the British Mediterranean island of Cyprus—a dozen freighters had been made ready to transport German troops and equipment from the Black sea port of Constanta, in occupied Rumania, to Syria.

The British Broadcasting Corporation, in a French broadcast heard by NBC, stated that there were some 200 Nazi planes in airports in Syria and that Germans were painting sign posts and printing road guides in German.

The Germans denied the Latakia landing and so, too, did the Vichy government's colonial authorities.

Nazi Plane Shot Down.

Late in the day, the British announced, a German troop-carrying junkers plane of the type used in the aerial invasion of Crete was shot down off Malta, the fortified British island lying at mid-Mediterranean just south of Italian Sicily.

This action, in an area well to the west of the British imperial defenses now so imminently threatened, could have been connected either with an attack on Malta itself or with the developing Nazi offensive eastward.

For their part, the Germans took the attitude as to the Middle East: Wait and see. But a Nazi spokesman declared roundly that should French "sovereignty" be

Fair, Warmer Forecast Today

Fair and slightly warmer today is the weatherman's answer to heat-parched Atlantans.

While yesterday's extremes ran from 70 degrees to 86 degrees, the heat today will range from 72 degrees this morning to 92 degrees this afternoon.

The daily forecast predicted no rain for the section until Friday or Saturday, when substantial showers are expected to move into the state from Texas.

Democracy-by-the-Yard Ballot Palls as Well as Polls Voters

City Folk Somewhat Dismayed by 1,044.0625 Inches of Type, and Don't Seem To Care If Doerun Wants To Refund Bonds.

By WILLARD COPE.

Democracy reached what might loosely but clearly be described as the height of logical depth yesterday as Georgia's 159 free, untrammelled and considerably bewildered counties went to the polls. The democratic process—as the fair Josephine Wilkins, of the Georgia League of Women Voters so aptly terms this sort of thing—had Joe Doe, the well-known conscientious voter, to say nothing of Mrs. Doe, gasping from not long after sun-up until well along toward evening milking time, while Mr. and Mrs. Urban Slicker frankly found themselves depressed by the whole ghastly affair and with very little of the old follow-through left when it was all over.

They had to vote on 70 individual and separate proposed amendments to the state constitution dealing almost wholly with cross-roads issues and then to register a resounding choice for a new solicitor-general of the Waycross judicial circuit. This last-named item on the agenda, presented in the form of three and one-half inches of type, four columns wide, had the additional appeal of offering but one name for the office—the gentleman obviously being unopposed.

"I thought," suggested Mrs. Doe, mildly perturbed, "there was a war on, or something. Saving labor, and stuff, and all."

"Hah!" politely snarled her spouse, gnawing his pencil anew as he considered whether to "X" in a positive or negative on a thrilling installment giving the city of Stone Mountain the right to issue refunding bonds, "who's got time to think about war with all these here prime political issues of the most far-reaching scope and significance staring him dead in his fishy eye?"

Voters Confused.

Or, as Mrs. Slicker observed to her debonair husband, Urban: "Urby, old companion, does this make sense, having to vote on a string of yes's or no's from Rabun Gap to—er—Thingumajig—what's the name of that other place?"

"Tubby Light, dammit," responded her life-companion, no less a gentleman than the aforementioned Joe Doe. "And the answer to the other part is no, it don't make sense."

Delving into the statistics of the matter, The Constitution's Slide Rule and Inchange Committee, assembling at dawn to get at the task early, found that the actual type involved measured 64 and 1-4 inches from north to south and 16 and 1-4 inches east to west, for a grand total of 1,044.0625 inches of linotype composition. This inchange was printed upon a thick sheet of durable semi-calendered stock about the size of a baby's blanket—a large baby, probably named Harold, about size 6-B.

Issues Complex.

As for the issues themselves, the situation lacked nothing in its complexity. Everybody was wanting to borrow money, or to put it more straightforwardly, as stated in Item 10, for wanting the voters to vote on "ratification of amendment of Article 7, Section 7, Paragraph 1, of The Constitution, authorizing the City of Doerun to issue refunding bonds."

There were a few other propositions. In fact, the one about giving the governor a one-year term was tossed in twice, probably just to make sure. The first time, right at the start in Item 1, the Governor and the constitutional officers were mentioned. The second time, in Item 2, only the Governor was so honored. One got the idea that maybe Gene had a idea some of those constitutional officers might have a strike or so on them politi-

F.D.R. Expected To Delay Filling Court Positions

Attorney General Jackson Mentioned for Chief Justice Vacancy.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(P)—With the supreme court in recess until next fall, President Roosevelt indicated today that successors to Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes and Associate Justice James C. McReynolds would not be named immediately.

Hughes' announcement last night that he was retiring July 1 for "considerations of health and age" was as much a surprise to him, Mr. Roosevelt said, as to anyone else.

He made this comment at his press conference after he had been asked whether he had delayed appointing a successor to McReynolds, who retired February 1, because he had expected Hughes to retire.

Attorney General Robert H. Jackson and Senator James F. Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, had been mentioned as possible successors to McReynolds, but with Hughes' retirement it was generally expected that the attorney general would be appointed chief justice. Mr. Roosevelt said he did not know when his appointments would be made.

The day Jackson issued this statement on Hughes: "To the lawyers who practiced before him, Mr. Hughes will always remain 'the chief justice.' By firmness, dignity and legal scholarship he won our respect. By fairness, good humor and understanding of the problems of lawyers he won our affection."

"The bar ranks Chief Justice Hughes in a class with John Marshall. Both men were great judges. But it was their constructive use of judicial power that placed both men among the first statesmen of the republic."

90-Year-Old Frenchman To Marry Spinster, 71

VICHY, France, June 3.—(UP)—Augustin Leduc Agend, 90-year-old father of 11 children, and Mile. Pulcherie Helle, 71, announced their engagement at Lille today after she had "almost given up hope of finding a husband."

cally and wanted to be sure he'd get by, no matter what.

Another issue was concerned with annual sessions of the legislature, reading, viz., "... ratification of the amendment to Article III, Section IV, Paragraph III of the Constitution of Georgia, providing an annual 50-day regular session of the general assembly." Both the Does and the Slickers were glad to have a shot at that one, from all accounts.

They worked along down the list patiently, drawing freer breath now and again when something came up like fixing a new term for the state superintendent of schools. Then things would go vague again as they struck another one reading like this: "... ratification of amendment of Article 7, Section 7, Paragraph 1, of The Constitution, authorizing the Clayton school district of Evans county to issue refunding bonds."

"It seems to me," confided Mrs. Doe to Joe, "the ones about money are the hardest to figure out."

Joe was pleased.

"Maw," he declared, jubilantly, "dogged if I don't believe you're beginning to learn sumpn about politics."

OF WOMEN IN DEFENSE—Mrs. Eddie Rickenbacker, wife of the World War flyer, is shown here as she spoke to the Zeta Beta Chi sorority last night, discussing women in national defense. She returned from Europe on the eve of the present war, and witnessed first-hand the home defense efforts of European women.

Annual Session Women Urged Amendment To Take Part Had Hard Fight In Defense

Talmadge Leaders Were Cool to Proposed Change.

The constitutional amendment on the ballot as No. 69 and which provided for 50-day annual sessions of the legislature went before the people after a bitter struggle in which Governor Talmadge and his forces played a major role.

The Talmadge leaders generally were cool toward the amendment, although the chief executive himself never once came out in open opposition to it.

The battle actually began soon after Governor Talmadge was elected for his third term. He held a series of legislative conferences in Atlanta at which he quizzed the legislators on sentiment in their respective communities regarding his program.

Serve as Check.

Naturally one of the principal questions propounded at these conferences was how the various counties stood on the four-year term, which was a major plank in the Governor's platform.

During these discussions on the four-year term it was suggested that annual sessions of the general assembly might serve as a good check on the Governor, in the event his term was extended.

The Governor and his leaders listened to the arguments in favor of annual sessions but displayed no enthusiasm over the proposal.

Measure Passed.

However, when the 1941 general assembly convened a measure was introduced calling for 50-day annual sessions and it passed, along with the four-year term, by an overwhelming majority. The administration leaders supported it, and when it came before the Governor he signed it.

Members of the legislature looked upon the four-year term and annual session amendments as companion measures. They figured that one would pass or go down in defeat with the other.

Not long after, the legislature had adjourned, however, they began to see the handwriting on the wall. The word got around that the Governor and his stalwarts did not want annual sessions—that they were scuttling the amendment.

Slide-Track Issue.

When approached on the subject the Governor always said there was no need to try to do too many things at one time. He spoke long and hard for the four-year term, pointing out it was a part of his program, but generally managed to slide-track the annual session issue.

When the question of whether he wanted yearly sessions was put directly to him at a meeting of his staff in Atlanta, he replied by saying, "That is a question for the voters to decide."

But at the same meeting Representative Herschel Lovett, of Laurens, a strong administration leader, bolted straightforward into the fight by declaring outright that the administration did not care for annual sessions.

He pointed out that a legislature meeting every year would be a source of constant embarrassment to carry out a specific program.

Many newspapers backed the Governor in his stand. Organizations promoting the four-year term distributed literature over the state, and in all of it the annual session amendment got snubbed.

Not Organized.

Many legislators who had held high hopes of coming back to Atlanta next year then assumed a different attitude toward the four-year term. They did not like the separation of the two issues, and resolved to fight the four-year term. Some of them even became cool toward the Governor.

Nevertheless, they did not bring their opposition together in an organized effort against the four-year term for the annual sessions.

Mrs. Rickenbacker Tells Group Importance of Civilian Aid.

Because modern warfare strikes at the civilian as well as the soldier on the battlefield, it is imperative that women of America take their places in defense preparedness, Mrs. Eddie Rickenbacker, wife of the World War flyer and president of Eastern Air Lines, told 60 members of the Zeta Beta Chi sorority last night.

Emphasizing the importance of civilian defense effort, in which women would play a major part, she pointed out that 30 civilians for every soldier have been killed in the battle for Britain.

"America is threatened from within as well as from without," she said. "Our security is growing daily more treacherous. The airplane that once was an angel of mercy has become a horrible demon of destruction. Nobody in any place can feel safe from the dropping of bombs. We can never know when suicide squads may be sent over to drop bombs just for the purpose of scaring us and throwing us into hysteria."

She told of the work of the American Women's Voluntary Service organization, which is planning nationwide courses to teach women such jobs as truck driving, firefighting, first aid, and other defense work. Mrs. Rickenbacker is regional director of the group.

Mrs. Rickenbacker was on a steamer en route home from Europe when the present war broke out. She visited European capitals and saw first-hand the tension of prewar times. After her talk last night she showed moving pictures of women in defense work in Europe.

Dawson Lions Club Elects Officers

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. DAWSON, Ga., June 3.—Hill Peddy was elected president of the Dawson Lions Club for the new club year to begin July 1 at the last weekly meeting of the club. Other officers named were: Dr. J. C. Tidmore, first vice president; Gordon Barbee, second vice president; N. W. Haines, third vice president; Byron Bennett, secretary-treasurer; Charlton DuPre, assistant secretary-treasurer; Roger Ford, tail twister; and Henry B. Crowell, Jr., lion tamer.

Dr. Charles R. Smith and Charlton DuPre were named as new directors. Jesse Chambliss and Fred Puckett, members of the present board, will continue on for another club year.

Delegates selected for the state convention of Georgia Lions to be held in Augusta on June 8-10, are Hill Peddy and Byron Bennett, incoming club president and secretary, with Henry B. Crowell Jr. and K. W. Haines as alternates.

Dahlonega College Plans Exercises

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. DAHLONEGA, Ga., June 3.—The 69th annual commencement exercises of North Georgia College will be held June 6-7, Friday and Saturday. The exercises will be held for all classes whose numerals end in "one" and "six."

Events on home-coming day will be the final military parade reviewed by Governor Talmadge and the Governor's staff, dedication of the Joseph Spencer Stewart library, annual alumni meeting, and the Rex-Sigma Theta home-coming dance.

The commencement address will be delivered Saturday night, June 7, by Dr. Steadman V. Sanford, chancellor of the University System of Georgia.

A class of 150 candidates will receive their diplomas Saturday night.

Family Called George Given Strongest Unit Recognition as In U. S. Defense Acting Leader

Rickenbacker Appeals to Homes for Discipline in Democracy.

If America is really to prepare herself for defense, she needs more than engines of war; she must toughen up, not through the regimentation that will prove the disintegration and downfall of totalitarian governments, but through the American family.

This is the opinion of Captain E. V. Rickenbacker, World War ace, who yesterday outlined his views on defense problems facing the nation in a statement here. "This is no time to waste time," Captain Rickenbacker said. "It is up to the heads of American families. They can continue on their golfing, motoring, bridge playing, country club, bank night way of living if they prefer, but this way will not make for a robust people and will not build the sinews that are required for national defense."

Must Begin Now.

"It is later than we think. We must begin now to recapture the vigorous fortitude that held this nation together when Americans worked and lived and progressed as families. Our loose thinking, loose living has sapped what must always prove to be the only real strength of a race, the family."

"Every father and every mother must see that the abuse of what we have pleased to call our 'liberties' has caused our children to look upon their homes as only stopping-over places. Homes cannot be merely places of hesitation and still be homes. Used in this manner they are only houses."

"A million and one-half young Americans are now under arms. For the most part—and I hear from many of them now in training—these young men are delighted with the opportunity to get back to first principles. They are working for a common cause and they are working hard at it. They are giving up many of the small privileges and liberties to which they had become accustomed, in order to make this nation strong."

Defense Is Inspiration.

"Industry is working 24 hours of the day, seven days a week, to build the sinews that will protect America. Time is the essence and adequate defense is the inspiration. Every person connected with America's vast program realizes this fact."

"The whole measure of American success in this superhuman program of defense reverts to the institution that has made the country strong from the beginning, the American family. The family and not society of classes peculiar to European nations, has given America her strength to endure. I hope all American fathers and mothers will accept as their pleasant obligation to act now to draw the family ties closer."

College at Genola Holds Exercises

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. GENOLA, Ga., June 3.—The eighth annual graduation exercises at West Georgia College will be held in the college auditorium, Thursday, June 5, at 10:30 a. m., and Dr. Raymond R. Paty, president of Birmingham Southern University, will deliver the baccalaureate address.

Prior to the graduation exercises, the presidential reception for members of the faculty and sophomore class was held this evening at the home of President and Mrs. I. Ingram.

Tomorrow afternoon members of the alumni association will sponsor a tea dance in the gymnasium. Faculty and freshmen will entertain at a dance for sophomores Wednesday night.

Amendment to Supply Bill To Ask 6 Million

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(P)—The senate adopted today an amendment to the Interior Department supply bill for the next fiscal year authorizing an additional $6,000,000 in contractual obligations for the Blue Ridge, Natchez Trace and George Washington parkways.

As the bill passed the house, it carried $6,000,000 cash appropriation to pay off contract obligations authorized last year, but no new cash. The two proposals must now be compromised in conference between the house and senate.

Early Votes Favor Long Term

One authorizing the city of Stone Mountain to issue refunding bonds received 2,762 votes with 1,167 against in the home county. The second, authorizing DeKalb county to establish sewerage, water, and fire prevention systems and parks and hospitals, received 2,296 for and 788 against at home.

Counting of votes throughout the state was unusually slow because of the length and complication of the ballot, and returns came in dribbles. Because of the time required to count the ballots it was thought that Fulton county, where voting was largest, might swing the final results on some of the amendments.

The vote was extraordinarily light even for the off-year election, the last one scheduled because the last legislature abolished the odd-year ballot. Many rural precincts did not attempt to count their ballots last night, and in the cities clerks struggled through midnight to complete their tabulations.

Governor Talmadge, who was watching the returns come in at a downtown hotel, seemed elated over the results. His telephone was kept constantly busy as he talked to supporters throughout the state. The Governor urged passage of the four-year term, but had remained indifferent publicly on the annual session amendment.

Asked to comment on whether passage of the four-year term would mean his announcement for Governor for a fourth term, the chief executive turned to the weather.

"What about this rain?" he said, switching the subject. "You know, I'm particularly concerned about this drought right now. I may make a speech about it tomorrow night over the radio. You know the weather bureau has predicted rain before the weekend."

Previously Committed.

The Governor had previously announced that if the amendment passed he would be a candidate again.

As the returns trickled in, there were frequent remarks about the Governor's prediction it would begin raining on election day. He forecast last week there would be a real "gully washer and trash-floater" after the polls closed.

Some Georgia farmers were still waiting for the "gully-washer." The Constitution's Vidalia correspondent said the south Georgia farmers were betting on whether the Governor's predicted rains would be accompanied by lightning and thunder.

Up in Banks county the Governor scored a bull's-eye on his rain prophecy. Election managers in Homer were sitting around counting the votes when drops of rain began to fall. Soon they began to fall faster. The election managers quit their vote-counting and went home to enjoy the rain. They said they would finish today.

Georgian Becomes Most Powerful Figure in Senate.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS, Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, June 3.—Georgia's Senator George today became the most powerful figure in the senate, if not in the entire congress, with White House recognition of his status as acting majority leader in addition to his full chairmanship of the all-powerful Foreign Relations Committee and the acting chairman of the Finance Committee.

President Roosevelt summoned him to the executive's regular weekly conference with the "big four," consisting of the vice president, speaker of the house and majority leaders of the two houses.

Senator George has been serving as his party's chieftain in the senate during the illness of Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, who is confined to the Naval Hospital with a leg infection.

Unofficial Capacity.

Once before the Georgia senator was called in to take part in a similar conference, but then he acted as a "fifth wheel" to the "big four." That was at the time of a debate on the British aid lease-lend bill, which he piloted through the upper chamber by virtue of his chairmanship of foreign relations.

Ever since Senator Barkley went to the hospital Senator George, acting on the suggestion of his Democratic colleagues, has served in an unofficial capacity of majority leader. He has been performing the routine duties of leader, steering through bills favored by the administration and opposing those not approved. It has required practically all of his time on the floor. The only upshot he has received thus far came today, when the senate passed a sugar quota bill which the administration had not supported, but this was not considered a matter of any great moment.

No Assistant Leader.

The senate has no assistant majority leader, which explains the necessity of casting the Georgia senator in his temporary new role.

Senator Lister Hill, of Alabama, is the Democratic whip, but his duties call more for rounding up majority members and having them on the floor when an important vote is to be taken.

Senator George said today he had found the acting leadership duties a bit severe, taken in conjunction with his other heavy responsibilities as chairman of foreign relations and finance, consequently he plans to ask his colleagues to relieve him next week if the business of the senate is too heavy. The majority leader as a rule is divorced of all committee chairmanships in order to permit employment of his full time running proceedings from the floor.

College at Genola Holds Exercises

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. GENOLA, Ga., June 3.—The eighth annual graduation exercises at West Georgia College will be held in the college auditorium, Thursday, June 5, at 10:30 a. m., and Dr. Raymond R. Paty, president of Birmingham Southern University, will deliver the baccalaureate address.

Prior to the graduation exercises, the presidential reception for members of the faculty and sophomore class was held this evening at the home of President and Mrs. I. Ingram.

Tomorrow afternoon members of the alumni association will sponsor a tea dance in the gymnasium. Faculty and freshmen will entertain at a dance for sophomores Wednesday night.

It Was Alcohol, But Not Illegal

Radio Patrolmen J. M. Jackson and R. R. Bradford were cruising on Forsyth street yesterday afternoon when E. L. Betsill, a brother officer who patrols the Forsyth street beat on foot, hailed them in obvious excitement.

"See that car just crossing Marietta street?" he said. "It's got a load of illegal liquor and some of it is leaking. It passed here and I could smell it just as plain."

Patrolmen Bradford and Jackson lit out through the heavy late afternoon traffic. At Carnegie Way they overtook two startled women whose radiator, still full of wine alcohol, was boiling over and filling the evening breeze with a fragrant aroma.

Natchez Trace and George Washington parkways.

As the bill passed the house, it carried $6,000,000 cash appropriation to pay off contract obligations authorized last year, but no new cash. The two proposals must now be compromised in conference between the house and senate.

Early Votes Favor Long Term

One authorizing the city of Stone Mountain to issue refunding bonds received 2,762 votes with 1,167 against in the home county. The second, authorizing DeKalb county to establish sewerage, water, and fire prevention systems and parks and hospitals, received 2,296 for and 788 against at home.

Counting of votes throughout the state was unusually slow because of the length and complication of the ballot, and returns came in dribbles. Because of the time required to count the ballots it was thought that Fulton county, where voting was largest, might swing the final results on some of the amendments.

The vote was extraordinarily light even for the off-year election, the last one scheduled because the last legislature abolished the odd-year ballot. Many rural precincts did not attempt to count their ballots last night, and in the cities clerks struggled through midnight to complete their tabulations.

Governor Talmadge, who was watching the returns come in at a downtown hotel, seemed elated over the results. His telephone was kept constantly busy as he talked to supporters throughout the state. The Governor urged passage of the four-year term, but had remained indifferent publicly on the annual session amendment.

Asked to comment on whether passage of the four-year term would mean his announcement for Governor for a fourth term, the chief executive turned to the weather.

"What about this rain?" he said, switching the subject. "You know, I'm particularly concerned about this drought right now. I may make a speech about it tomorrow night over the radio. You know the weather bureau has predicted rain before the weekend."

the whole area which feels the power shortage may have to go on daylight saving time, and such a plan may be proposed at the meeting today, it was indicated.

The pooling plan will require the utilization of all interconnecting lines now in service, and the construction of many more power company officials here anticipated, in order that all sources might operate at full capacity, carrying a peak load to areas where defense industries require maximum production.

Georgia is already tied in with sister states, they pointed out, and even now Georgia lines are carrying North Carolina power to hard-pressed TVA. Georgia power contacts also with Alabama through four lines, with Florida through one, and another contemplated with South Carolina, and with local power sources in Crisp county. A line connecting with the Savannah Power & Light Company is also being built.

Rain Needed Badly.

The pool will result in "milking a few more kilowatt hours from the rapidly drying up power cow," one official said, "but what we must have to get out of danger of a serious shortage is rain and plenty of it."

Meanwhile, the efforts at conservation of power had begun to show some results. A cursory survey in Georgia, Alabama, and three cities in Tennessee indicated that a saving of at least 1,517,837 kilowatt hours was effected last week as compared with the week ending May 24. Most of the saving took place toward the end of the week, when the public awoke to the potential danger.

The Georgia Power Company reported a saving of 170,077 kilowatt hours, the Alabama Power Company 781,000; Knoxville an estimated 150,000; Nashville 275,000, and Chattanooga 141,760.

State Is Given Vote on Grady For First Time

Two Local Bond Issues Failed Despite Heavy Ballot.

When the voters of Georgia yesterday cast their ballots on proposed amendment No. 21, authorizing cities and counties to contract with each other for the construction and maintenance of hospitals, the long fight for improvement of Grady hospital and other hospitalization facilities in metropolitan Atlanta was taken to the people of the state for the first time.

Twice before bond issues to improve local conditions by providing funds to build a new Grady have failed because they failed to meet constitutional requirements. The issues, however, were approved by overwhelming majorities.

Backed by the Grady board of trustees, which now administers Grady hospital, Battle Hill Tuberculosis Sanitarium and the Albert Steiner Cancer Clinic, the amendment not only enabled the city and Fulton and DeKalb county governments to contract to provide adequate hospital facilities, but was statewide in application, and other local governments were to be allowed the same privilege.

21,000 Patients.

Grady hospital admitted 21,000 persons last year and patients spent 186,000 days, aggregating 532 years, in the institution. The city expends approximately $800,000 a year in the maintenance and operation of Grady and Battle Hill sanitarium.

The main Grady plant is more than 50 years old and is regarded as a veritable fire trap. Fire officials have long recommended that it be replaced with a modern, adequate and fireproof structure.

Upwards of $5,000,000 has been proposed for building a new Grady and Battle Hill, which also is of frame construction and incapable of meeting the demands increasingly made on it.

Joint Agreement.

Proponents of the authority cited the under department arrangement the city and Fulton and DeKalb counties would enter a joint agreement to create the authority and that expense for operation of the institutions and several DeKalb county clinics, which are proposed, be prorated to the two counties on the basis of their respective hospital population.

The proposal specifies that the two counties provide necessary revenue to amortize the bonds and cost of operation by a special tax. The proration plan was advanced to eliminate criticism that the Atlanta government has been imposed upon in being forced to carry a disproportionate share of the cost of present operations.

Grady has long waiting lists for certain departments and Battle Hill has had waiting lists for years. Enlargement of the plants is proposed to care for future growth.

More than 10 babies are born at Grady each day in the year and the percentage of those born there has increased steadily in recent years.

Germans Claim 11 Million Tons Of Enemy Ships

DNB Compares Daily Total to 9-Mile String of Freight Cars.

BERLIN, June 3.—(P)—Since the beginning of the war, German armed forces have sunk 11,664,000 tons of enemy shipping, the DNB, official news agency, said today.

Its totals showed that since February, 1941, with the exception of the especially successful month of April, the Germans sank a round total of 730,000 tons monthly. It compared the daily total to a nine-mile string of freight cars, each holding 15 tons of material.

(British figures on Allied losses for the same period were 5,961,044 tons lost.)

Utility Ordered by SEC To Halt Dissolution Vote

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(P)—The Securities Commission ordered the North American Company today to abandon a meeting scheduled at Wilmington, Del., tomorrow to vote dissolution of North American Light & Power Company, an intermediary holding company. The commission said that it would back up its order if necessary by seeking a federal court injunction.

This unprecedented step followed a day of arguments during which S. Pearce Browning Jr., counsel for North American, challenged the commission's jurisdiction and invited an immediate court test rather than accept a proposal by Chairman Edward C. Eicher, of the SEC, to delay the meeting long enough to permit a full study of the proceedings.

194 Charged With Fixing Of U. S. Prices

Battery Separator Monopoly Alleged; Food Control Investigated.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—(P)—Mass indictments returned today charged 194 corporations and individuals with price fixing and monopolistic control of a defense industry and many foods carried from California to the nation's dinner table.

Two federal grand juries brought the charges against five branches of the food industry and against western manufacturers of battery separators.

Battery separators are an obscure essential of the nation's mechanized defense. They are plates made of wood to separate cells of batteries, which in turn are used in automobiles and every motorized branch of the armed forces including airplanes, tanks and submarines.

Monopoly Nationwide.

M. S. Huberman, of the anti-trust staff, said the battery separator manufacturers indicted belonged to a nationwide monopoly that fixed its own prices.

Indictments in the food industry were brought against every major cannery in the rich central

Autos Selling Without Usual Year-End Lag

Contra-Seasonal Demand Expected To Assure No Surplus.

DETROIT, June 3.—Heavy buying of new motorcars continues unabated with indications that the contra-seasonal trend will carry on through June and leave no surplus at the end of the model period.

Generally the closing weeks of a model season see a sharp tapering in demand on the theory that new models only a few weeks away are more desirable.

From present indications the new models scheduled for initial appearance around August 1 will be no less desirable from any angle—construction, styling, roadability and riding qualities—but they are going to cost more and they certainly are not going to be any more plentiful at the start of the new model year.

Plane Firm Now Has 700 Million Backlog

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 3.—(P)—Consolidated Aircraft Corporation reported the $226,636,200 contract awarded the firm by the War Department today for four-motor bombers boosted the company's backlog to more than $700,000,000.

The contracts represent large orders of long range patrol seaplanes and the four-motor land bombers for Great Britain and the United States Army and Navy.

U. S. Producing Planes as Fast as Nazi Plants

began today at the Pratt & Whitney plant with an Army and Navy officer accompanying the newspapermen. The trip, sponsored by the National Association of Manufacturers, will give a comprehensive picture of what is going on.

Our total plane production is a military secret, but it is believed the aircraft industry is keeping pace with the producers of engines.

Emphasis on Bombers.

Our production of fighter planes is below that of Germany because we produce many trainers and our emphasis is on bombers rather than pursuit ships. The airplane industry generally has done a better job than any of the other defense industries.

The Pratt & Whitney plant is today four times as large as it was a year ago. It has in its training school as many students as there were workers in the entire plant three years ago. The assembly room alone is as large as the entire plant of a year ago.

Half-Mile Room.

I walked through one room, one of the two sections devoted to English contracts. The room was a half-mile long, all under one roof. There are 1,600,000 square feet under roof and in use and another half million feet are being covered as another wing goes up.

Those who speak of our production in airplanes probably do not realize what a complicated task it is to begin production in airplane engines.

An airplane engine is a dramatic thing. The next time you see an Army plane of the modern 2,000-horsepower type in the air, consider this fact about its motor.

Costs $25,000.

Its total cost is about $25,000. Its carburetor alone costs about as much as your automobile if you drive one of the low-cost cars of about $700.

There are in it about 10,000 separate parts, if one includes each bolt and nut that goes into its construction.

It is more accurately machined than the most costly watch. If the best airplane motor was not better machined than your watch it would shake out of its frame. Many of its parts are machined to two or three-millionths of an inch.

Silver-Lined Bearing.

Its main rod bearing is lined with silver.

Into the construction of one airplane engine of this type go more than 50 different metals. Steel, copper, lead, tin, zinc, nickel, aluminum, silver, chromium are in it. Almost every metal known to the metallurgists, except gold itself, is in that engine. There are 17 steel alloys in its make-up; there are 13 aluminum and magnesium alloys in it; there are brass, bronze and bearing materials; there are many non-ferrous materials in it and there is synthetic rubber, real rubber, plastics, mica, cork, asbestos, even paper, used in finishing all its shining, exquisitely machined parts.

It requires about five months to make one engine if one starts with raw materials. So, when you see the next big Army pursuit

Standard Oil Sales to Japan Are Explained

Pact Known to U. S., British Governments, Stockholders Hear.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., June 3.—(P)—The Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) outlined to stockholders today details of an agreement to sell additional supplies of oil to Japan "negotiated with the full knowledge of the American, British and Netherlands East Indies governments."

W. S. Farish, president of the holding company with interests wherever the world gets its oil, read a prepared statement to the annual meeting with the preface that the question of oil shipments to Axis powers had been raised and the concern wished to explain its program.

Aviation Fuel Excluded.

The New Jersey Corporation, which meets in this rural borough of 2,700 residents, explained it owned 50 per cent interest in Standard Vacuum Oil Company, with Far Eastern headquarters in the Netherlands East Indies.

Farish's statement continued: "About six months ago this affiliate joined with a Dutch-British oil company, a major producer of oil in the Netherlands East Indies, in special arrangement, over a limited period, to sell Japan additional supplies of oil and ordinary oil products. 100 octane aviation gasoline, for example, was excluded."

"The agreement was negotiated with the full knowledge of the American, British, and Netherlands East Indies governments."

"Up to date, the Japanese have not taken delivery of the full quantity of products they bargained for."

Earnings "Healthy."

Farish said he was "particularly gratified" with the company's business for the first six months of this year compared with a year ago.

"Our guess is that earnings for the first six months will be very healthy and will run between $75,000,000 and $80,000,000," he said, adding that if things kept going as they were he hoped the directors would be able to declare a $1 a share dividend at the end of the year. The year-end payment last December was 50 cents regular and 25 cents extra.

G. M. Salaries Given Big Boost

DETROIT, June 3.—(P)—Between 35,000 and 40,000 salaried employees of General Motors Corporation throughout the United States are being given salary increases, it was learned today, coincident with the formal signing of a contract between the corporation and the United Automobile Workers (CIO) granting 170,000 hourly rated workers a 10-cent-an-hour wage increase.

All salaried employees receiving $200 or less a month were given a $15-a-month raise, while adjustments are being made on an individual basis for workers receiving more than $200.

Bioff, Labor Leader, Waives Extradition

LOS ANGELES, June 3.—(P)—William Bioff, Hollywood labor leader accused in New York of attempted extortion, waived extradition today and posted a $50,000 appearance bond.

A removal hearing, scheduled Thursday, was canceled.

Bioff and George E. Browne, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, are accused of attempting to extort $550,000 from four movie producers.

shifts just as does the work. The students are paid 50 cents an hour as they learn.

E. E. Wilson, president of the Pratt & Whitney Company, has leased manufacturing rights to Ford, Chevrolet and Buick. Ford is about ready to begin production.

Starting from scratch it requires from 18 months to two years to get into production. In fact, manufacturers of airplane engines agree that getting ready in 18 months is making good time.

Tools Are Available.

There is no shortage of tools. The tool industry has done a magnificent job.

There is a great fear, however, that a shortage of raw materials, notably aluminum and the proper sort of steel, may result when all the plants now tooling and building, get into production.

Pratt & Whitney obtain about 50 per cent of their parts from sub-contractors. This, plus their leases to the three automobile companies, has enabled them to step up production at a rapid rate and also to expand with great rapidity.

Tribute To Industry.

When a great industrialist such as Frederick B. Rentschler says that by midsummer we will be matching Germany's production of fighter planes and that by next summer will be exceeding her, it is important. When he says that the industry of this country can out-produce all continental Europe in airplanes, it borders on the sensational and is a magnificent tribute to this country's industrial genius.

Constant experiments go on with engines and with propellers. One experimental test house cost a quarter of a million dollars.

Byrd Demands F.D.R. Remove Miss Perkins

Virginia Senator Calls for End of Labor Haggling.

By The Associated Press.

Senator Byrd, Democrat, Virginia, called upon President Roosevelt yesterday to remove Miss Frances Perkins as secretary of labor or to take from her department the power to certify strikes to the Defense Mediation Board.

Addressing the senate in Washington, he said that on May 31 there were 74 strikes against industries supplying Army and Navy orders, of which only three had been certified to the Mediation Board. These figures, he said, did not include 21 threatened strikes in industries building merchant ships.

To the end of last week, the Virginian added, there had been no improvement in the defense strike picture since President Roosevelt's fireside chat urging labor and industry to use government mediation and conciliation agencies in settling disputes.

"I submit," Byrd told the senate, "that there should be no further delay in dealing firmly and sternly with this great menace to our national security and this interference with our aid to Britain in her eminent peril."

The Navy he continued, had informed him that strikes against naval contracts alone had lost to national defense approximately 2,000,000 man days of work, enough time, he said, to build 8 to 10 submarines, 6 to 8 destroyers, or 2 battle cruisers.

The government's efforts to bring about full resumption of work in the strike-bound shipyards of San Francisco bay moved a step closer to realization when the Bay Cities Metal Trades Council (AFL) ordered its metalcraft workers to go back to their jobs at the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Company pending grievance negotiations.

Federal Guards For City Water To Be Sought

National Emergency Demands Close Watch, Officials Decide.

Aid of the FBI and the Army will be sought by the city in guarding its $15,000,000 water system during the present national emergency, it was decided by municipal officials yesterday after a conference in Mayor LeCraw's office.

The decision to ask federal aid came after a thorough discussion of the proposal and the problems involved. In addition to the mayor, W. Zode Smith, general manager of the waterworks; Police Chief Hornsby; Assistant Chief Ellis; City Comptroller B. Graham West, and Charles Gramling, superintendent of the pumping stations, were present.

LeCraw announced he will call immediately on the Army and FBI to assist in the undertaking and affixed his signature of approval to a council resolution ordering the employment of guards to police the system's vital spots. The council acted Monday.

Smith pointed out that the system is now guarded by city and county police, but the "coverage" is too limited to give the security necessary to protect the water supply for 400,000 users in the metropolitan area. He said the guarding should be intensified during the present period so that all risk would be eliminated, and insisted that guards be kept on the job 24 hours each day.

"There have been no threats or no overt acts," Smith explained, "but if we neglect to give the system the protection it deserves, we may act too late to prevent destruction of our system, which is so vital to the comfort and health of our citizens."

WPA Is Asked To Begin Work On Water Main

$600,000 Project To Include Filtration Plant.

Federal authorities have instructed the WPA to begin immediately on construction of a new $600,000 water system and filtration plant at East Point, it was announced yesterday in the office of George Sparks, superintendent of lights and water.

The project was approved several months ago, but work was held up pending settlement of complications over the title of the property on Headland drive, on which the filtration plant is to be constructed.

Laying of 10 miles of water main from the Chattahoochee river and general improvement of the water system already in use will be included in the project.

Work on the filtration plant will probably begin Monday, city officials said.

LeCraw Assails Parking Lot Raise

Mayor LeCraw yesterday lashed out at what he called "profiteering of the worst type," when he assailed Atlanta parking lot operators for raising the price because the city's traffic improvement program has caused large numbers of automobiles to find parking facilities off the streets, indirectly driving them into parking areas.

He said rents have not advanced for the operators and that their taxes have not increased. He added that it is his opinion that those who have advanced their prices are taking an unfair advantage of the public and that he plans to look into the question of assessments on the lots which have hiked their parking prices to learn if they are paying their full share of taxes.

"It just isn't right for them to take advantage of the public when parking facilities are limited," LeCraw said. "Something should be done about it and I'm going to do what I can to see that the public is treated justly."

Three Are Held In Murray Jail In Man's Death

Woman Sentenced to Die in 1927 Is Among Trio Arrested.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. CHATSWORTH, Ga., June 3.—Three persons, two men and a woman, were held in jail here tonight in connection with the death last night of Walker Elrod, about 35 years old, a farmer who was stabbed to death at the home of his father, Ab Elrod, 12 miles south of Chatsworth.

Those arrested were listed by Sheriff J. W. Morrison as Virgil Scott and Kermit Pritchett, and a woman, Eula Elrod Thompson, who in 1927 was charged with two others of the slaying of Coleman Osborn, at his store near here. She was convicted and sentenced to be electrocuted. Her sentence was commuted in 1928 by Governor Hardman to life imprisonment and she was paroled in 1936 by Governor Talmadge. Her husband, Cliff Thompson, and a Negro, Jim Hugh Moss, were electrocuted for the Osborn death.

According to reports, Scott, in company with the Thompson woman, who is Walker Elrod's sister, and Pritchett went to the Ab Elrod home last night, and an argument arose, during which Walker Elrod was stabbed and died instantly.

Sheriff Morrison said all those arrested had been placed in Murray county jail here and that no date for a preliminary hearing had been set.

Elrod is survived by his wife and four children.

All of the men involved are farmers.

Granite Cutters Pledge Full Aid

Pledging full co-operation to President Roosevelt for the duration of the emergency, the Lithia local of the Granite Cutters' International Association yesterday adopted a resolution calling upon all other unions to pledge no strikes in the present defense drive so labor may record a perfect score in the gigantic task of building the national defense.

A copy of the resolution, signed by President Melvin H. Kelley and Secretary J. B. Willis, will be sent to President Roosevelt immediately, Kelley announced.

U. S. London Naval Aide Is Reported Suicide

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—The Navy Department said today that Lieutenant Commander Walter Raymond Jones, assistant naval attaché in London and former White House aide, had committed suicide.

(A member of the embassy staff in London said death came yesterday afternoon in Londonderry, Northern Ireland.)

No further details of his death will be given out, the Navy said, pending a report by a board of investigation.

Commander Jones, 43, was a native of Grand Ledge, Mich., and a 1921 graduate of the naval academy.

'Gene' To Tell Nation About Drouth

Governor Talmadge will broadcast over a nation-wide hookup at 10:15 o'clock tonight in a talk which is designed to relieve fears that Georgia is becoming a drouth-torn dust bowl and to assure the nation that national defense industry in the state will not be slowed up because of lack of power.

Mindling Sees Dozen British Ships Released End of Georgia Drouth Friday For War Effort

An inch of rainfall in north Georgia, where the Georgia Power Company is desperately in need of water to resupply its numerous power dams, was not sufficient to bring the drouth to an official conclusion.

Despite the fact that Atlanta was drenched Monday by more than three inches of rain, the remainder of the state received only slight and scattered showers. Outrigger of Fulton county the heaviest fall was reported at Monticello, where only one-fourth of an inch was measured.

Yesterday's temperature extremes, which failed to break during a brief midday shower, ran from 70 degrees in the early morning to 86 degrees shortly after noon. Today will be fair and warmer, according to Mindling, with extremes from 72 degrees to 92 degrees.

The bureau's weather map discloses a strong storm area moving eastward from Texas. Today it will cross into Louisiana. By this weekend it should bring to an end the most serious drouth in Georgia during the past two decades.

In Atlanta cooler weather will set in Friday and Saturday, with intermittent showers. The southern part of the state will benefit from cooler weather and heavy showers, that later will move into North Georgia and the Carolinas.

Mindling pointed out that Atlanta's local storm Monday varied from a 3.32-inch recording at Warren street, a 2.62-inch reading at the post office, and only .14 of an inch report at Conder Field. He added that the 3.32-inch reading occurs "only once or twice a year."

At only three other stations, however, out of the state's 13 bureaus, was any precipitation noted. Monticello led with its 24 inches; Gainesville had .05 of an inch and Griffin had .04 of an inch.

North Georgia, where rain is needed most by the Georgia Power Company to resupply its numerous power dams, may receive scattered rainfall today. But this, bureau officials added, was a hazardous guess and they preferred to base their hope on the Texas storm arriving this weekend.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. ROCHELLE, Ga., June 3.—The Y. W. A. of the Rochelle Baptist church has named officers for the next six months. They are: President, Miss Hazel Holt; vice president, Miss Velma Robinson; secretary and treasurer, Miss Opal Nance; program sponsor, Miss Kate Green.

Suspected Auto Thief Captured After Wild Run

Woman Reported Thrown From Car Before Crash Into Wire.

Edward Neal, 19-year-old Negro youth, of 674 Parsons street, S. W., was taken into custody last night on suspicion of car theft after leading police on a wild chase through the north side of Atlanta—first in a speeding automobile and then on foot.

Spotted in a car reported as stolen, the suspect was chased by Radio Patrolmen J. C. Barnes and D. C. Taylor, after he attempted an illegal turn from Techwood drive into Harris street, they reported.

The two policemen followed Neal to Hemphill and North avenues where, avoiding a second police car which was blocking the road, he ran through a filling station, throwing a woman passenger of the car to the pavement, they said.

Continuing to State and Sixteenth streets, Neal drove into the guy wire on a telephone pole and wrecked the automobile. He was captured on Kontz street after a foot race.

Suicide Verdict In Powell Death

MARIETTA, Ga., June 3.—Edward F. Powell, 51, local investment broker, was found shot to death in the bath room at his home on Gramling street here today by members of his family.

A coroner's jury summoned by Cobb County Coroner John Williams returned a verdict saying that he "came to his death from a gunshot wound self-inflicted." He had been in ill health for some time.

He formerly lived in Atlanta but had been a resident of Marietta several years.

Mr. Powell is survived by his wife; four daughters, Mrs. Cleveland Atkins, of Marietta; Mrs. J. C. Clements, of New York City; Mrs. Alan Palmer, of Atlanta; Mrs. F. H. Whitten, of Atlanta; two sisters, Mrs. G. B. Morgan, of Vienna; Mrs. Fred Brunson, of Macon; one brother, N. A. Powell, of Cuthbert.

Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock in Vienna at the Methodist church there, with the Rev. H. E. Stipe officiating. Mayes Ward & Company are in charge.

German Forces Said Entering French Syria

attacked by the English in Syria Germany was quite willing to concede to Vichy the "sacred right and duty" to fight back.

In Vichy itself Marshal Philippe Petain's cabinet met twice, and General Maxime Weygand, commander of France's North African troops, was in attendance.

Dispatches from Beirut, French-mandated Lebanon, reported that a British plane dropped four bombs on Shell Oil Company depots there early today.

An authoritative Frenchman said this activity was connected with Vice Premier Admiral Jean Darlan's publicly expressed hostility to Britain and with Monday's Brenner Pass meeting between Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini. He spoke of Darlan's denunciation of the British as an "indication" of the direction that the new French policy is taking.

In plain words this seemed to mean—although there were, as always, many hidden angles in the situation—that while Vichy had perhaps not decided just how far to go actively or passively in helping Hitler to strike at Cyprus and eventually at the Suez canal, through Syria the British were most certainly not going to get any of the best of it.

The British radio, quoting a report from Ankara, Turkey, asserted that the secretary of the French embassy and the French consul there have informed the Vichy

Crete Inquest Now Looming In Parliament

Searching Study of Loss Seen; Strong Mobile Defense Demanded.

By EDWARD W. BEATTIE JR. LONDON, June 3.—(UP)—British military experts tonight demanded the swift organization of mobile units "armed to the teeth" against any Nazi air-borne invasion of the British Isles, and it was reported that parliament will launch a "searching inquest" on the loss of Crete.

The authoritative press association said that when parliament reconvenes Prime Minister Winston Churchill is expected to be asked to provide an explanation for the surrender of Crete which he had announced would be "defended to death."

"Questions will be put to the prime minister and probably to other service ministers concerned and they may even be demanded for a debate into the causes of so serious a setback in the Mediterranean struggle," the press association said.

Mobile Units Demanded.

The creation of hard-hitting mobile units specially designed to cope with air-borne invaders may be one of the first lessons put into effect as result of Germany's astonishing aerial conquest of Crete, it was stated in reliable quarters.

Clamor spread for something imaginative in the way of defense of the British Isles to meet the Germans' ingenuity and the British people were impressed by a blunt statement of the Daily Mail that "something is wrong. . . . Britain needs new ideas."

"When we are really going to get down to the job of winning the war?" asked the Daily Mail. "When are we going to run our machines, factories and shipyards to full capacity? When are we going to see the end of our masterly retreats?"

Resent Inferior Weapons.

It was evident to Americans in London today that many Britons are tired of being told that their troops are superior to the Germans in man-to-man combat, but that their weapons are inadequate. The men of the British army probably feel the same way about it.

It was considered essential to add to the defenses a special corps assigned the specific job of airport protection, including (1) light tanks for quick "mopping up" work; (2) heavy anti-aircraft protection, including guns to operate against dive bombers at low levels; (3) equipment to provide that any airport the Germans did capture would be mined so thoroughly that it would be useless for landing additional invaders.

Airfield Preparation.

The Daily Mail's Cairo correspondent, Alexander Clifford, carried on his paper's appeal for action with a strong criticism of British defensive preparations in Crete. He charged that Britain occupied Crete so she could use the Suda bay naval base, then made no serious attempt to protect it.

"After six months in Greece, we did not have enough airfields even for our own few planes," he wrote. "But within three weeks of occupying the country the Nazis had fresh landing grounds in use."

No London Peace Talk, Winant Tells Reporters

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—After an hour's conference with Secretary Hull, John G. Winant, ambassador to Britain, told newspapermen late today he had heard no peace talk of any kind in London.

Asked how the British people were taking the war, Winant said they "are a gallant people, a united people and have great morale."

Negro Bandit Takes $16 From Bus Operator

Brandishing a revolver, a Negro passenger on a Druid Hills bus last night held up C. F. Wiggle, the bus operator, and robbed him of $16, police were told.

The Negro was the only passenger on the bus, Wiggle said.

government they intend to joinhow to meet American intervention in the war.

The broadcast, heard by CBS, said the two officials "have informed the Vichy government that they cannot continue to represent the policy followed by Admiral Jean Darlan and they intend to join General de Gaulle."

Too, it was stated that the French cabinet had wanted General Weygand's "advice"—and whatever advice he had to give would presumably be military.

On every hand the Axis still made full use of the Brenner meeting. The Germans, with a technique to them, appeared to be encouraging the widest possible speculation as to when and where the next Hitler-Mussolini blow would fall. Certain Italians, however, stressed that the biggest accomplishment at Brenner was a decision as to

War Between U. S. and Reich Is Possible, Wiedmann Says

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—(UP)—Captain Fritz Wiedmann, German consul general, citing the possibility of war between the United States and Germany, has communicated with a San Francisco draft board to prevent the possible drafting of the son of a consular staff member, it was disclosed today.

Wiedmann told the board that in the event of war between United States and Germany, the youth would be forced to return to Germany with his father and other consular staff members.

The boy is Edgar Schultz, son of Franz Schultz, and an employee of a San Francisco shipping firm.

Mat Gereghino, chairman of board 101, has referred the case to the United States State Department, explaining he would do the same with any such matter of such a "ticklish" nature.

It was reported young Schultz has applied for American citizenship and has signified his willingness to serve as a trainee.

Funeral Today RAF Attacks For R. Wheaton, Berlin, Spreads Griffin Leader 'Circle of Fire'

Prominent Businessman and Churchman Dies After Long Illness.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. GRIFFIN, Ga., June 3.—Funeral services for Robert Wheaton, 68, prominent local businessman and church leader, will be held tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock from Hiaston Brothers' funeral chapel.

The Rev. M. M. Maxwell, former pastor of the First Methodist church here, and the Rev. Frank Pinn, present pastor, will officiate. Burial will be in Oakhill cemetery.

Mr. Wheaton died early this morning at the residence after an illness of several weeks. He was president of Robert Wheaton & Sons Company here and of the Georgia Basket & Lumber Company, of Fort Valley. He had been in business in Griffin since 1900 and organized his company in 1914.

Numerous public buildings, including churches and schools, as well as many of the largest homes were built by him.

He was a member of the First Methodist church here and in 1904 he was appointed to the board of stewards.

Surviving are his wife, the former Miss Vivie Worthington; two sons, Robin M. Wheaton, of Griffin, and George H. Wheaton, of Fort Valley, and three grandsons, Robin M. Wheaton Jr. and Powell Wheaton, of Griffin, and George H. Wheaton Jr., of Fort Valley.

Firm To Reopen Tin Plate Mill

PITTSBURGH, June 3.—(AP)—The Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation announced today operations would be resumed June 16 at its Shenango tin plate mill in New Castle, Pa., to facilitate defense production.

About 1,000 additional workers will be given employment on a "partial and temporary basis" in the reopening, the corporation said.

1,000 Japanese Troops Sail From Indo-China

HAIPHONG, French Indo-China, June 3.—(UP)—A group of Japanese soldiers estimated at 1,000 embarked on transports and sailed today for an unknown destination.

Major General Raishiro Sumita, head of the Japanese military mission, returned to Hanoi yesterday from Tokyo.

Canadian Plane Crashes In RCAF Hunt; 5 Die

HALIFAX, N. S., June 3.—(AP)—The Royal Canadian Air Force men were killed today in the crash of their plane on or near Sable island, 100 miles off the coast of Nova Scotia.

Royal Canadian Air Force officials said the deaths occurred while the plane was searching for another RCAF plane previously reported missing from the Glace Bay area with a crew of four aboard.

U. S. Surprises Impossible, Say Axis Chieftains

Hitler, Il Duce Studied Situation Fully, Paper Says.

ROME, June 3.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini has agreed with Reichsfuehrer Hitler on a plan to meet American intervention in the war, and this was the one main object of their conference at Brenner Pass yesterday, Fascist sources indicated tonight.

La Stampa, of Turin, said that the Duce and the Fuehrer examined "all aspects of the situation with its imponderables and its prospects" and that as a result "no surprise is possible; everything is calculated up to the last consequence."

The authoritative Fascist editor, Virginio Gayda, taking a similar tack, said the Axis leaders had "discussed new plans to follow a new cycle which is opening immediately" and were ready for action against the United States if that country should enter the war.

Gayda wrote in his Il Giornale d'Italia:

"This is a time of action. The meeting of Il Duce and the Fuehrer is itself action."

"England, with urgent voice, is calling for American aid. The Axis powers can oppose to this vast reserves of military and political forces of European and world efficiency and substantial prospects of defense and offense."

High Fascists believed Hitler and Mussolini had agreed on the next move in the war. Il Telegrafo of Leghorn, Foreign Minister Count Ciano's newspaper, said that results would be seen within the next few months.

Vichy May Grant Axis Dakar Port

LONDON, June 3.—(AP)—The British Broadcasting Corp., in a program based on an article by the Times diplomatic correspondent, speculated tonight on the possibility that France may have agreed to joint use of Dakar, Casablanca, Algiers and Beirut by the German and French navies.

It went on to suggest that Germany might annex Alsace-Lorraine and in return require France to renounce her claims on France and cut the French war indemnity by a half or a quarter.

(As heard in New York, the broadcast left the impression that these were the actual terms, but the BBC in London said the matter was strictly speculative.)

2,800 Anzacs Missing After Battle of Crete

AUCKLAND, N. Z., June 3.—(AP)—Acting Premier Walter Nash announced today that 2,800 New Zealanders who fought in Crete are still unaccounted for. Among the arrivals in Egypt were 768 wounded.

Some of the missing may yet arrive, he said.

U. S. May Take Over Pipe Lines Blocked by State Legislature

Possibility Strong If Congress Passes Seizure Bill, Which Is Likely, Correspondent Williams Declares.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Possibility of the federal government taking over for completion and operation the pipe line started between Port St. Joe, Fla., and Chattanooga, Tenn., through Georgia, was seen today if Congress passes the bill sought by the War Department giving President Roosevelt broad powers to commandeer private property for temporary or permanent use in the interest of national defense.

Already introduced in both houses of Congress yesterday as a defense emergency measure on recommendation of the Secretary of War, the bill, carrying administration backing, is expected to be approved in due course.

Rigid Limits Are Suggested By Oil Group

'Gasless Sundays' and Lower Home Heat Discussed.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—Rigid restrictions, one the use of oil, including "gasless Sundays," were suggested today by a committee of the petroleum industry, in the face of an acute shortage expected by July 1.

In a report to Secretary Ickes, defense petroleum co-ordinator, the oil men pledged their support "to any extent" to meet the anticipated emergency, and thus ward off a menace to the preparedness drive.

The shortage is expected on the eastern seaboard, hub of defense production. It results from the transfer to British service of 50 of the approximately 250 tankers of America's coastwise fleet.

The committee, formed by the American Petroleum Institute at the request of the Office of Production Management, suggested that temperatures of homes heated by oil could be lowered during winter.

Both the oil men and Ickes urged that oil pipe lines be run from Louisiana and Texas to the New York-Pennsylvania area, to deliver petroleum to the east.

The oil men said the oil deficiency would be felt in the east beginning July 1 and would become progressively more acute next autumn.

New Jersey Repeals Bund Auxiliary Charter

TRENTON, N. J., June 3.—(AP)—The New Jersey legislature passed a bill today repealing the charter and incorporation of the German-American Bund Auxiliary.

The measure, drawn at the direction of Attorney General David T. Wilentz, was rushed through both houses and directed to Governor Charles Edison.

The bill would force the group to dispose of its property and wind up its affairs in New Jersey. Its Camp Nordland at Andover in the north Jersey hills was closed by Sussex County Sheriff Denton J. Quick on Memorial Day as a public nuisance.

NORWEGIAN TANKER IS SUNK

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—The 6,114-ton Norwegian tanker Beaulieu has been sunk with a loss of four lives while operating under British control, maritime sources said today.

The bill would force the group to dispose of its property and wind up its affairs in New Jersey. Its Camp Nordland at Andover in the north Jersey hills was closed by Sussex County Sheriff Denton J. Quick on Memorial Day as a public nuisance.

needed for defense purposes. It would require that just compensation be paid the owners.

Congressional reaction largely followed the already well-defined lines of those who support and oppose the President's foreign policy, with opposition centering principally upon the possibility of permanent seizure.

Those who attended the White House meeting were Vice President Wallace, Speaker Rayburn, Representative McCormack, Democrat, Massachusetts, the house majority leader, and Chairman George, Democrat, Georgia, of the senate foreign relations committee. McCormack said later the property bill was discussed in a "limited way."

Former Powers Recalled.

The measure, he added, was largely a "recapitulation of laws enacted during the World War" but went somewhat beyond the legislation passed at that time. The house committee which takes up the legislation will inquire into that phase of the matter, he added.

Robert P. Patterson, undersecretary of war, met reporters at a press conference, and referring to the legislation, said the "President should have the authority to throw the whole industrial power of this country into equipping the army."

"The military and naval requirements come first," he added. Conceding that the bill would empower the chief executive to seize strike-bound plants, Patterson said it, nevertheless, was not drafted as a solution for labor difficulties, but to meet future emergencies.

Time To Act—End Uncertainty

President Roosevelt, in his fireside chat of last week, made statements, voiced definite promises, that created a determined hope that this nation was, at last, ready to take decisive action to assure the smashing of the Nazi horror.

The following day, at a special press conference, he so qualified the promises made the day before that much of the value of his radio address was lost. The nation, which had been ready, and gladly ready, to follow him in any firm action again became doubtful and suffered from an inevitable "let down" feeling. Since that time events have happened which have made the position of Britain even more precarious. The loss of Crete, despite all explanations and optimistic analyses, was a serious blow. London newspapers are expressing dissatisfaction with the handling of the war and are, rightfully, declaring the British people are growing tired of "masterly retreats," and can see no reason for further mistakes by the high command.

John Winant, British ambassador to Britain, has come home by clipper to make a report to the President and a forceful appeal for American participation, with Britain, in a "fighting war." Leader after leader, in this country, has declared that the time has come, if it has not already passed, when this country must cease procrastination and act at once if the world is to be saved from Nazi domination.

Only a little handful of wilful obstructionists, of men either wittingly or unwittingly blind to the awful situation, of enemy agents posing as Americans, oppose any action that may be necessary to turn the tide of victory.

It is time, more than time, for the President to end the nation's uncertainty. He has been granted the power, he has all the authority needed. If a "shooting war" is necessary, as few can now deny, to save this nation from the Nazi threat, well, then, let the "shooting war" start before it is too late. Further delay is but inviting national disaster and death.

To wait for Germany to fire the first shot is but to repeat the mistake that every defeated nation has made.

Unless President Roosevelt takes the initiative, at once, this nation will, in the near future, find herself shackled to the Nazi machine and future generations will look back upon these days as the days of hesitation that doomed a free America to national serfdom. And the Roosevelt administration will go down in history as the administration that betrayed the nation by procrastination and fear.

The President need have no fears as to national unity. Let him act, definitely and decisively—let him make effective the words which, as yet, are but words, by action—and he will find a nation, grim and determined, behind him.

What does a growing generation know of hardship that has its castor and oil liver oil in six delicious flavors?

Alarm Clocks and Happiness

According to the magazine, Nation's Business, there has been a sharp rise in sales of low-priced alarm clocks and watches since August last. There is no surer sign that men and women are going back to work than this. For what individual takes interest in the passing of time who has no regular duties to perform?

A man indifferent to the passage of time is, in most instances, idle, bored and unhappy. The man in prison who stops counting the hours and the days is in the lowest possible depths of despondency, a man who offers the most serious problem of all to the penologist.

When a man has a job, when his days are crowded, when he has to watch the time so that no task encroaches too much upon another, he is too busy to be unhappy.

The alarm clock may be a tyrant in those morning hours when another few minutes of sleep is the overwhelming desire, but the very lack of the need for its urgent call to work is a symbol of normality and contentment for the average individual.

A Hitler mouthpiece compares the Fuehrer to our Abraham Lincoln, but gives no date for an emancipation proclamation.

To Protect Our Youth

When groups of men are brought together for military training, the band wagon of organized vice, gambling and drunkenness always tries to follow in order to make money by catering to man's weaknesses. So it is in our peacetime mobilization as thousands of young men enter the ranks of a civilian army and navy. To them the country owes a direct responsibility to protect them from promoters of vice who bring disease and demoralization in their wake.

Prevention is still the best enemy of disease. The War and Navy Departments understand the need to initiate a program of control and education for the protection of soldiers and sailors. The Army and Navy and Public Health Service realize that only with persistent war against prostitution, provision of instruction and prophylaxis and continued treatment can they conquer venereal disease.

In the last war the determination to protect the health of every soldier and sailor was manifested by the removing of harmful influences. Prostitution was repressed; sex delinquency was prevented so far as possible. Today a similar method is proving highly effective—to make every man aware of the dangers of prostitution, to teach the value of prophylaxis where exposure has occurred and to provide regular medical examinations.

But the whole problem cannot be left entirely to the military and naval officials. Their authority cannot exceed the necessary limits of a camp and naval station. If this fight is to be won, civilian groups must co-operate with the Army and the Navy.

The American Social Hygiene Association carries on where the military authorities leave off. Dr. Frank K. Boland, appealing to Atlanta citizens for funds in support of the work of the Association, says that commercialized prostitution, and through it venereal diseases, threatens to undermine the health and welfare of the American people. The need today is "treat but the Association is carrying on the fight with every prospect of success if needed money and personnel are made available. You can help by contributing to the national campaign fund, a large part of which is being spent to protect soldiers and sailors from Georgia wherever they may be stationed.

Next to having the doorknob come off in the hand, you'd think the emptiest feeling would be driving miles to "see a blackout."

Lou Gehrig

The death of Lou Gehrig brings to early close a life which, nevertheless, must have been filled with satisfaction. Certainly Lou Gehrig left a record behind him which should prove an inspiration to every boy and every young man in America.

One of the greatest athletes the country has ever known, Gehrig was famous for the clean, moral, upright life he lived. All his life he was the personification of the clean, happy boy. Had he lived any other sort of life, he could never have set the record of playing 2,130 consecutive big league games, a record which won for him the nickname of the "Iron Horse."

The rare disease which attacked him some two or three years ago, and which has now taken his life, did not diminish his enthusiasm for life, nor his intensely active mind. To his post as a member of New York's Parole Board he brought the same intensity of interest that had made him one of baseball's greatest figures of all time.

Gehrig is dead, but his name will live as long as baseball is the national pastime. He stands in the game's hall of fame, side by side with its other great ones and, thanks to the publicity which shines upon the head of an athlete such as he, his life will remain as an example of splendid manhood and of character which every young American could emulate to advantage.

Our engineers perform miracles, but are still building highways that don't curve when the nut driver does.

Georgia Editors Say:

NEGRO COLLEGE GRADUATES

(From The Valdosta Daily Times.)

Latest available figures indicate that during the school year just closing there were 200 per cent more Negro men and women in college in Georgia than in 1926. This is another proof of the progress that is being made by the Negro residents of Georgia in the matter of education. In 1926 the Negro college enrollment in Georgia was only 1,224. During the past year there were 3,063 such students.

Within the next few days 11 Negro colleges in the state will graduate 449 Negro men and women. The degrees to be conferred include bachelor of arts, bachelor of science, bachelor of divinity, master of arts, master of science and master of social work. In addition, there will be a number who will receive diplomas for special work in agriculture, home economics and education.

This increase in Negro college enrollment is an encouraging sign. It means that the colored people of the state are giving more time and attention to higher education and this is certain to work for a better and more enlightened citizenship.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

THE TIME IS VERY SHORT WASHINGTON, June 3.—There need be no mystery about Ambassador John G. Winant's mission in this country. The prime motive of Ambassador Winant's return from London is to tell the President in person, with all the persuasive force at his command, that the time is getting very short. For it is Winant's view that, if this country delays much longer, the time for useful action may have passed.

This may perhaps be denied, both by Winant and the White House, yet it is an incontestable fact all the same. Nor is it surprising that Winant should hold such a view, and should have made a special trip to the United States to press it upon the President. The truth is that the same view is held by virtually every reasonably competent presidential adviser here in Washington. The known facts of the war situation are quite sufficient to carry conviction, without first-hand experience in London.

WINANT'S VIEW The facts behind Winant's view, which might just as well be called the War and Navy Departments' view, are of two kinds. First, there are the facts of the position of the British people. For ten terrible months the British people have maintained their resistance with magnificent courage, withstanding a grinding, cruel attrition without a murmur or whimper. Courage flows, however, from hope—in this case the hope that aid from America will some day permit Britain to take the offensive. The process of attrition continues unabated. New victories have recently been shown on the British people in the Mediterranean and the end is not in sight.

No competent observer, official or unofficial, who has recently come back from Britain thinks it prudent for this country to count on the inextinguishability of British courage, unless we are prepared to accept full fighting partnership in the war. Even if the people of Britain are not fully aware of the seriousness of their plight, their leaders are. And not all the British leaders are possessed of the bulldog tenacity and determination to fight even a lost cause to the finish that Winston Churchill has displayed.

Such is the best available summary of the first set of facts, which have been little mentioned in public, but much discussed in private by the men who make American policy. As for the second set of facts, it should be known to every intelligent reader of the newspapers.

By deferring action, this country has permitted Britain to be progressively weakened. In every contest between British and German forces there has been a margin between success and failure which the British could not cover. In several contests, the margin has been narrow enough to be covered by this country. Yet it has not been covered, and the contests have been lost. This process is now reaching a stage of acute danger. Crete has fallen, thus greatly increasing the threat to the British position in Egypt. The British position in the Middle East is now in jeopardy. The United States, it seems to be preparing to put all its resources at the disposal of Germany. General Wavell has fortunately been reinforced, in the last three or four days, by large desperately needed shipments of mechanized material. Yet the eastern Mediterranean picture is extremely dark.

The western Mediterranean depends, to a large degree, on the eastern Mediterranean. If things go badly in the eastern Mediterranean and this country continues to delay its decision, then the Germans will have little difficulty in taking the Iberian peninsula and French Africa. By so doing, they will greatly improve their chances in the battle of the Atlantic, measurably weaken British courage, and gain possession of bases—Dakar, Casa Blanca, the Cape Verde, the Azores and Lisbon—which will directly threaten us.

ACTION NOW! The cost of delay is appalling. The great majority of people in this country are ready, as the polls show, to accept full fighting partnership with Britain if that is necessary to avert a German victory. The President warned them of the necessity, not openly, but by implication, in his message to the nation last week. He also promised to do all things that need to be done, but again he failed to say how or when he proposed to do them.

Therefore, the important thing today is the timing of American action. That is what worries Ambassador Winant and the chief officials and most important strategists of the War and Navy Departments. They do not doubt that action will come in the end. But they fear that, for political and other reasons, the President may wait to act until the moment for action has passed, or almost passed.

Immediately after the President's great message, the signs indicated plainly that action would be taken at once. Since then there have been contrary signs. Heavy emphasis has been placed on "delivering the goods to Britain," although Britain is now so weakened that mere delivery of the goods will not be enough. Much has been made of the Atlantic patrol, suggesting that the President perhaps intends to defer action in the hope that the patrol will be aid enough, or that it will create an incident which will serve as a pretext for action. But the bleak truth still remains that, if the United States proposes to act at all, the time to act is now, and not next week or even tomorrow. As has been said, this truth is agreed to by every competent presidential adviser. It is to be hoped that if the truth still needs to be brought home to the President, Ambassador Winant's voice will turn the trick.

More About

The Backwoods.

In that northern Ontario territory, of which I wrote something yesterday, many of the roads were of the "corduroy" type, laid down by the lumbermen who worked there each winter getting out timber. A corduroy road is made by laying saplings, sideside, crosswise of the road. Substantial, but mighty rough driving. The roads were usually narrow, just about one buggy width, with occasional wider places where vehicles could pass.

The owner of the factory I ran used to drive a team of two fast horses, abreast, hitched to his buggy. He'd place his bag of money, to pay for the milk the farmers brought to the factory, between his feet, lay a loaded revolver on the seat beside him in case of attempted hold-up, and start on the 25-mile trip from his home. Also, he'd always have at least a dozen bottles of beer in the back of the buggy. He was a big, robust man and he drank beer by gallons, from the bottle.

A couple of French-Canadian lumberjacks did try a hold-up of his buggy once. One jumped out of the underbrush at the horses' heads and tried to hold them. The other, gun in hand, stepped to the side of the buggy and ordered Jack to toss out the money bag. Instead, he grabbed a gun and fired at the man beside the buggy. He always said he was pretty sure he missed. But the shot scared the horses and they bolted, knocking down the man at their heads. Jack said he thought one wheel passed over the man, but he was too busy trying to get the team under control for the next two miles or so to worry about it.

The Lake

At the Factory.

My factory stood on the shores of a lake, some four miles long and about a mile wide. I used to stand and watch great clouds of wild duck, in the fall, wheel and set out of the lake. And there were deer that came down, in the early dusk, to drink.

I shot my first and only deer on the shore of that lake. But could never bring out the antlers to prove it. For it was out of season and the antlers would have been a dead give away to the law. I shot it in company with my farmer friend. Still hunting, without dogs. Just waiting until the deer came down to drink. The farmers there could never understand the game laws. They said the deer fed on their grain fields and they had a right to shoot them. Never shot for any other purpose than to fill the meat house, anyway.

The river which ran out of the lake was filled with rocks, so that it was a churning rapids for miles.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

New Ism

NEW YORK, June 3.—

Of our Own? Only the few, or many, Nazi-Fascists among us will like this, but it seems to me that in an awkward, uncertain way we have been edging over toward some new ism of our own, an ism, nameless as yet and as unformulated, which when fully developed will give us much in common with our enemies. Collectivism is not a sufficient name for it, and Nazism and Communism are inappropriate. But our system and the freedoms which have thrived under that system, and no other, have been based on free enterprise, and we certainly have renounced that in a belief that only thus could we protect the workers from the soulless corporation.

So in many ways we have hampered enterprises with regulation, taxes, strict and onerous accountability and official and popular hostility and, at the same time, have officially encouraged the development of vast blocs of power under a few privileged individuals known as labor leaders. They control, among them, eight million of our nation's pairs of hands, but have no responsibility to the government or the nation and little responsibility to the workers.

They are not even required to account for the money which they collect, much of it under duress, and they discourage their subjects from appealing to the public courts for their rights. In many cases the subjects are forbidden to do so, under terrible penalties assessed by tribunals which are simply kangaroo courts. They have the power to block the whole national effort to manufacture weapons of defense, and have used this power in a considerable part during the year of this emergency, but they are absolutely free of regulation and immune to punishment.

Will Not Be Done

If the liberties of Americans flow out of the free system, then the way to preserve those liberties is to restore that system, but we know that will not be done because business, unregulated, rugged, wild. Even businessmen believe in regulation now, and some of them, who have to employ large numbers of, so to speak, faceless, impersonal strangers, are glad to deal with unions which can guarantee to supply them with hands to do the work at agreed rates. They prefer not to have to deal with individual workers at all.

However, we have plainly seen that the union chiefs, being under no legal regulation themselves, cannot deliver their people or keep them in line, so that after this war, if we are not cut up among the Axis powers, with Florida reverting to Spain, Louisiana to France, the southwest to Mexico and so forth, we will have to do something of the kind ourselves or perish of inefficiency and waste, in competition with the other side. Efficiently regulated, American industry and labor could produce much more of everything for everybody, and the smart politicians of the future, perhaps the "new leader" for whom Charles Lindbergh years, would attract the people to the new plan by making possible for them to travel cheaply and live well in beautiful vacation places in this wonderful country, under government auspices. He could promise lots of presents.

Loss of Freedom

But such regulation would pass the compulsion on down to the individual. He would be protected from exploitation and given presents, but in return he would have to surrender his freedom. He would have to work, if well, wherever his kind of skill was needed and without stalling on the job. His union dues would go into a government pot for labor's benefit, and a young man wanting to be a taxidermist might be compelled to learn plumbing instead if there were too many taxidermists and not enough plumbers.

You can't regulate industry and not regulate people, and I am afraid we are coming to that, although the American people are being taught to maintain freedom of religion and expression and of the ballot under such a system. I think we have been tending in this direction for some years, but have lacked the candor to admit as much even to ourselves.

Word Stories

By W Worthington Wells

In a recent article Westbrook Pegler was discussing the labor situation within the totalitarian states. He said, "Obviously such an organization would give labor a hand in government, but in Germany and Italy the effect has been to deliver labor into the control of one man."

OSTENSIBLY. Ostensibly is an adverb pronounced OS-TEN-si-bly with the accent on the second syllable. The fourth should be pronounced as (T) is most frequently used to imply something that is not real or actual; as: under the pretense of.

Political parties, organizations and individuals sometimes attempt to show the public that everything is harmonious and serene within, but actually there may be violent opposition and disagreement. Ostensibly such harmonious organizations would pull together, but actually they would not.

Writers frequently use the word ostensibly when they question the sincerity of outward appearances. Ostensibly a thing may be well, just, fair, plausible, etc., but that may be only for show or for the public.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

WITH THE GREATEST OF EASE

HARTFORD, Conn., June 3.—It is my opinion that the very finest newspapermen in the world are the American newspapermen. It also is my opinion that the finest newspapermen in the world are the American newspapermen. And, to carry it on, I think the reason France and Belgium and England were so far off base that Hitler's throw caught them in a chase was because they had such lousy newspapers. No matter what you think of newspapers, the American ones are the best.

I am at present flying through the air with the greatest of ease with a dozen foreign correspondents. Between them they have seen the whole show. It begins with the invasion of Austria and extends to the present bombing of England. Leland Stowe, the most brilliant correspondent of the World War, is along. He is 41 years old and he was able to do the finest stories and cover the most ground of all the many correspondents in Europe. While the younger correspondents waited for someone to add up the chips, Stowe was miles away sending in the story.

What I am getting at, is what they think. The people in Atlanta are very nice and most of them will listen to newspaper people. Permit me to say that your American newspaper person is a singularly honest person. There will be those who will dispute this. But let me say that the newspaperman has honesty built into his make-up, and it is difficult for him to be anything else.

There is one thing all these veterans agree upon. That is, that if England had given the green light to France when the hysterical Hitler started to occupy the valley of the Ruhr we would not now have all this trouble. The republic of Germany still would have been doing business at the same old stand.

DON'T BE DECEIVED It ought to be understood that these newspapermen want England to win. They are cynical about England. They think, as does anyone who has read history, that the leaders of England for the past 20 years ought to be hung.

They know that when Hitler started into the Ruhr the French army was ready to march. It would have been a simple matter to have stopped that German army. Hitler was, according to unimpeached testimony, afraid and ready to quit. No one opposed his army. England held up the big official white finger and halted France.

The one thing these newspapermen dislike and distrust and, in a measure hate, is politicians. They hate the politicians of France and of England. And some of our own.

It might be interesting to know they think Franklin D. Roosevelt to be the greatest conservative of modern times. They see him as holding fast to all that is worth while of the American way of life, defending it and keeping it strong.

If he neglects some parts of it which some have felt were valuable, these men who have seen the whole show and most of whom have felt the bombs over England, just smile and say it really doesn't matter. Roosevelt, they say, is the only conservative left in power in the world today. And, if you will think it out, you will admit it. He is the lone man in power who is a conservative.

WHAT ARE WE DOING? We are off on a trip to the main defense plants. What progress have we made? It is a fair question. We appropriated billions. We signed for plants to spring up in cornfields, in pine forests, in the plains and mountains.

What are they doing? The answer is they are just beginning to do. It takes time to build factories. It requires time to tool a plant. It needs many months to install machinery and get things going. We've been at it a year.

Things are beginning to roll. But we aren't ready yet to whip Hitler. We've sent a lot of stuff to England. We've sent more than you'd believe. But also so much of it has been sunk that you wouldn't believe that either.

We've had strikes—there haven't been so many. We've had fewer strikes than we had in 1917. But the strikes have hurt worse. The trouble is that neither capital nor labor have been able to agree on an equal sacrifice. That's one trouble. There is another trouble. One union has been unwilling to be honest enough to get rid of the racketeers in its leadership. The other is unwilling to get rid of the Communists in its leadership. The public is beginning to note that the Atlantic ship builders are doing a better job than the Pacific coast ship builders whose unions are rotten with Communism. Neither can make a completely honest claim.

Labor need not delude itself that public opinion is wondering why the AFL doesn't get rid of the indicted and convicted racketeers in its ranks and why the CIO doesn't get rid of the known Communists, notably Mike Quill in New York's transportation unions and the many others in the Pacific coast. The maritime unions are rotten with Communism.

These newspapermen are not cynical. They have seen a lot of history. They say that the political leaders of France's government and labor and the blind leaders of all groups in London let Hitler get off to a running start.

Young Men Are Drafted Because They Alone Can Endure

The Strain

By ROBERT QUILL.

For good or ill, one man is now a nation. Stalin is Russia; Hitler is Germany; Churchill is England; Roosevelt is America. The shape of the world to come will depend in large measure upon what is done by these four.

Critics of Roosevelt will say there are other men in America—trained executives, industrial experts, scientists, statesmen, thinkers, workers. So there are, but the point is that Roosevelt alone has the power to make final decisions. He is in charge of the job. Success will be his success; failure his failure. It is not surprising if he feels the weight of responsibility. For our safety and Britain's depend upon arming America in time, and the success of that achievement depends upon Roosevelt, then he carries on his shoulders the whole future of civilization. As a matter of fact he cannot bear it alone. The awful burden of the presidency, which has broken other men in time of peace, is all that he can carry. The additional burden of building defenses and supporting free men everywhere must be divided among other men—lieutenants who can be trusted with authority to act in his name.

What manner of men are these trusted ones upon whose fitness and capacity the future of mankind depends?

There is sad and saintly Secretary Hull, often wise and far-seeing, but old and no longer strong.

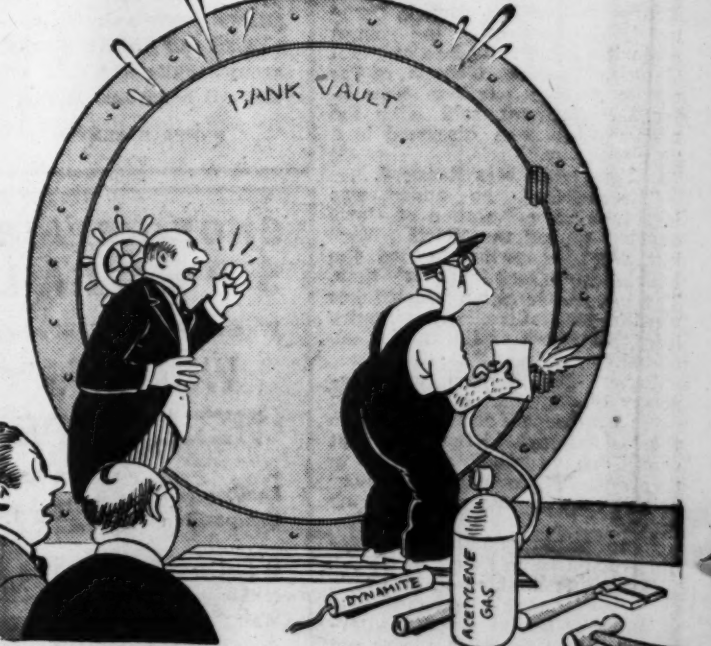

There is shrewd and far-seeing Secretary Stimson, whose wise counsel, if accepted, would have prevented much of the world's woe; but he is old and broken and daily falls asleep in the midst of conferences.

There is Hopkins, of proved ability, who has often seemed the President's right arm; but he is an invalid, so broken and weak he can work only a few hours a day.

A nation in peril can do its best only if directed by its best men—men of wisdom, shrewdness and foresight, who can make lightning decisions and be right most of the time; men of courage and daring who do not flinch from duty or evade responsibility; men in their prime, at the very peak of their powers, who can work long hours and still think clearly; men of fanatic zeal for the right, who can inspire confidence and win loyalty.

We need wise old men to make policy, but they should have the pick of the nation to do the job of translating policy into action.

OFF THE RECORD—By Ed Reed

"Don't worry in there, Rollins—we're allowing you time-and-a-half overtime!"

Dudley Glass

This week the kids get out of school, beginning their vacations, and some will get diplomas on the day of graduations. "Commencement days," they call them, when some gentleman arises and tells the graduates of life, its trials and surprises. The students listen patiently, their parents beam with pleasure and each one thinks his ugly duckling is the world's great treasure. The speakers praise the graduates with many a worn quotation and tell the world the coming crop will save our glorious nation.

But... no one ever thinks about the teachers of these scholars and how they labor years on end to earn their scattered dollars. No one gets up on his hind legs and hands the teacher praises... they lead a thankless life until they're underneath the daisies.

We'd rather earn our daily bread with cross-cut saw or shovel and wear a pair of quilted pants and live within a hovel, than spend our days with snarling kids, with colds and running noses, while teaching them to multiply or of the ways of Caesar.

Come, join me in a song of praise. Let's dedicate a lyric; don't put the teachers on the pan; give them a panegyric. They give our youngsters good advice, they teach 'em tact and manners and help them to appreciate our old star-spangled banners. They teach them of the oceans and the practices in Siam; if someone didn't do this they'd grow up as dumb as I am.

Our Blackout.

Public seems to be generously co-operative in cutting down on electricity because of the shortage of water power.

I haven't been up town at night since the Marx Brothers' picture played the Grand, but newspaper stories say the blackout makes things look lonesome and dreary. But all that isn't as bad as having all your juice cut off—as it was in that ice storm of a few winters ago.

My family's suffering was purely mental. We burned coal and had a cellar full of it—so we had none of the trouble of the oil-burning families over on the wealthy side of Peachtree road. Electricity was required to run the oil burners—and there wasn't any. So the hotels filled up with swank folk who wanted to get warm again.

But our juice was off several days. And we learned something of the force of habit. We city folk, accustomed to modern conveniences, become a slave to them.

We all knew perfectly well there was no electricity on tap. But we found ourselves pressing buttons and turning on switches just the same.

The Mistress of the Manor, after filling two lamps with kerosene, told the maid to bring the vacuum cleaner downstairs and get to work on those rugs. She brought it down and hooked it up—and then both of them realized how nutty they were.

Best way I have ever known to bring about a change in the weather is to write a column about it two days ahead of publication. I hope it works this time.

I'd hate to have my current cut off. Not that I use much just now, except for a reading lamp. But habit is so strong. And if there's a kerosene lamp or a candle on the place I wouldn't know where to look for them. The answer to that would be to put a flashlight under the pillow in case of emergencies and go to bed at dusk. Which isn't so bad, after all. One can get plenty of sleep and get up and go outdoors to read the paper.

'So Much To Live For'

Commenting on the death toll from traffic accidents over the Memorial Day weekend, Henry McIntosh, of the Albany Herald, says something fine—I think: "Shame, that life is so cheap in a country where there is so much to live for!"

"So much to live for!" A country of freedom. Of free speech and free press. Where no righteous citizen fears a policeman. Where a man in uniform is a friend and protection—not a menace.

A country where most folk can count on holding a job if they handle it efficiently. A country where they can look anybody in the eye and tell him it's none of his damn business about their politics or religion or racial background.

"Where there is so much to live for."

Add horrors of war: Egyptian henna is getting scarce. What's going to become of the gals who make you almost wreck your car to say: "Gosh, what a head of magnificent red hair!"

Oh, darn it, it's time I got back to doing a column.

Down below my office window an automobile horn is blowing. It has been blowing for five minutes. Loud and raucous.

If I had a gun and energy and could count on a pardon I'd go down and commit a slight case of manslaughter.

But, after all, maybe this chap's horn button is stuck. It happened to me once.

There! It's silent. Peace reigns supreme. Maybe his battery ran down. Or the driver of the truck ahead of him came out from the lunch room.

When Lee Battle died, early in 1940, the first act of the alumni was to erect a beautiful granite monument at his grave in the Negro cemetery at Forsyth, Ga. The address on that occasion was delivered by the late Judge John Guerry of the Georgia court of appeals. The program was broadcast over a network of stations.

At the dedication of the Lee Battle Memorial Infirmary last Monday afternoon, addresses were delivered by T. ## Halifax Urges U. S., Britain To Join Hands

Delivery of Aid Should Be Insured, Woodward Tells Group.

NEW YORK, June 3. — (P) — Lord Halifax, British ambassador to the United States, reiterated today that Britain's first war aim was destruction of Hitlerism, and said that before that time came this country and his must devote "much hard thinking" to post-war solution of political, financial and economic problems.

"I hope that the best minds, both here and in the British commonwealth, may find means of working closely together over all this field," he told the commencement day alumni luncheon at Columbia University. "For one this is very sure. There is little hope for the world's future, unless your people and ours can join hands to build it."

The diplomat, chancellor of the University of Oxford, spoke a few hours before he was to receive an honorary doctor of laws degree from Columbia.

Partnership Urged. American-British collaboration on world problems, he continued, would furnish the firm ground on which other nations might stand and take part in the task of world reconstruction. This can be done, he asserted, if Britain and America maintain "our present partnership and make it a real force in thought and action."

Rear Admiral Clark Howell Woodward, United States Navy, retired, who also was to receive a doctor of laws degree, told the alumni that this country should speed production of aid to Britain and make more sure of delivering that aid.

"We cannot vacillate much longer without being subject to grave consequences," he said. "Should England fall we have got a war on our hands whether we want it or not—all the isolationists, pacifists and wishful thinkers to the contrary, notwithstanding."

Decisive Phase. For Americans, he said, the "decisive phase of the war began with the Franco-German 'collaboration,'" which, he said, immediately threatened French colonies in the Western Hemisphere and west Africa with Nazi occupation and "the intrusion of the Axis into our immediate defense sphere."

A critical situation we must face forthrightly and resist with vigor, he said. "We cannot win without command of the seas and that America's big job, therefore, was to assist the British in controlling the Atlantic."

Public Lauds Selection of Miss Mitchell

'Gone With the Wind' Author Will Christen New Warship Atlanta.

Atlantans were pleased yesterday with The Constitution's choice of Margaret Mitchell to represent the city and christen the U. S. S. Atlanta when it is launched in August.

The people on the street were applauding the paper's choice, and said that congratulations were in order for the selection and for Miss Mitchell's acceptance. Mayor LeCraw asked The Constitution to aid in appointing an Atlanta woman to be the official delegate to the launching.

Public Applauds. Here is a portion of the comments collected by reporters from folks who were seen in the downtown area.

Fain Peek, salesman, of 230 East Lake road: "The author of 'Gone With the Wind' is perhaps most typically southern of any woman in the south. I think the selection is a great thing."

Evalyn Pollock, 878 Briarcliff road: "Miss Mitchell is the most appropriate person in town to represent us when the warship is launched."

Louise Jones, clerk, of 519 East Lake drive: "The Constitution made a perfect choice. No one could be better suited to show the rest of the country what Atlanta women are like."

J. H. Beeber, jeweler, of 1284 Oxford road: "I think Miss Mitchell the best person in the United States to give that ship a good send-off—it probably will float forever."

Deserves the Honor. C. T. Hovis, chief clerk, of 266 Eleventh street, N. E.: "Her book has done more for Atlanta in the way of advertising since Bobby Jones won his four titles. I think she will be great, and deserves the honor."

Fred Barrow, of the traffic patrol: "I was well pleased when I read the story. She's the one, all right, and I'm glad Miss Mitchell is going to christen the ship."

Mrs. Hampton Flowers, 31 Lafayette drive, N. E.: "Mrs. (John) Marsh will be an excellent person to officially represent Atlanta."

Mrs. Charles A. Golden, 332 Oakland street, Decatur: "I think this is the finest thing Miss Mitchell ever did. She is besieged with requests to appear publicly, and accepting this one was most generous of her."

FRENCH SHIPS UNARMED. LONDON, June 3.—(P)—Four large French merchantmen escorted by a patrol boat entered the Mediterranean via the Strait of Gibraltar today, according to a Reuters (British) dispatch from the official French news agency at Vichy. Two British naval auxiliary vessels cruising nearby did not trouble the convoy, the dispatch added.

Odd Fellows Urge All-Out Aid to Britain

Georgia Order Passes Resolution, Sends Copy to F.D.R.

A resolution urging "all possible aid to Great Britain" was passed yesterday at a meeting here of the Grand Lodge of Georgia, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and copies were sent to the President and congress.

The resolution was signed by D. R. Glenn, LeRoy Lewis, H. D. Collins and A. A. Thomas, all past grand masters. The resolution follows:

Whereas, it appears that there is a possibility that the combined Axis powers may defeat Great Britain in the present World War, and

Whereas, such a defeat would seriously affect the economic and moral welfare of the people of our great democracy, and

Whereas, it is believed that with the assistance of the United States of America a defeat will be averted, now, therefore, Be it resolved, that the Grand Lodge of Georgia, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, now in regular session in the city of Atlanta, Ga., this 28th day of May, 1941, urge that the President and the congress of the United States of America immediately render all possible aid to Great Britain, and

Be it further resolved that copies of this resolution be sent to the President and the congress of the United States of America and to local newspapers.

Gallup Poll Reveals: Convoy Sentiment Levels Off

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 3.—The latest public opinion study on the question of using the American Navy to guard ships going to Britain shows that, up to the time of the President's fireside chat at least, the arguments of noninterventionists such as Senators Nye and Wheeler and Colonel Lindbergh apparently halted the rise of national sentiment in favor of naval escorts in the Atlantic.

While the effect of the President's fireside broadcast remains to be measured in a survey now under way, a study virtually completed at the time of the broadcast shows that 52 per cent of those questioned by the Institute favor using the Navy to guard ships crossing to England, while 40 per cent are opposed and the rest undecided. This vote is virtually the same as the vote in a similar poll in mid-May, indicating no increase in convoy sentiment during the fortnight.

Sentiment Increases. However, the latest results do represent an increase in sentiment for naval escorts since late April, as the following trend indicates.

Should the United States Navy

be used to guard ships carrying war materials to Britain?

	Yes	No	Undecided
April 23	41%	50%	9%
May 21	52%	41%	7%
Today	52%	40%	8%

If the voters who are undecided are excluded from the tabulation of today's results, those who have definite opinions would divide 56 per cent in favor of convoying, 44 per cent opposed.

Interviewing in the survey was conducted during the period May 22-30, the bulk of it being completed before the President's fireside chat.

Freedom of Seas. In the light of the past two years, it is apparent that the American people have shifted their thinking on the whole question of freedom of the seas to a remarkable degree. When the war began just 21 months ago today, an Institute survey found that 84 per cent—an overwhelming majority—wanted American ships to keep out of the war zone. This was certainly an abridgement—although a wholly voluntary abridgement—of the free seas principle.

Yet today the majority of voters are willing to go so far as to convoy with our Navy any ships carrying American goods to the British war zone.

I. T. U. Rejects Bid To Return to AFL

INDIANAPOLIS, June 3.—(P)—The International Typographical Union has defeated a proposal to return to the American Federation of Labor, Secretary-Treasurer Woodrow Randolph announced today.

He said official returns from a membership referendum April 21 mailed to headquarters of the printers' union here gave 25,632 for and 33,498 against reaffiliation.

The federation suspended the ITU in October, 1939, for refusal to pay a special assessment of a cent a member a month to fight the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

AFL and ITU officials came to an agreement last February which led to the referendum.

Randolph said the union had some 80,000 members in 850 local in the United States and Canada.

Established in 1852, it issued the call for the 1881 convention at which the federation was organized.

School Closes For 65,000 Students Friday

Regular Term To Be Followed by Two Summer Sessions.

About 65,000 Atlanta school students today eye Friday with anticipation, for the 1940-41 school term will end officially at 11 o'clock on that date.

In the meantime, Dr. H. Reid Hunter, assistant school superintendent, announced that plans will be mapped at a faculty meeting at 3:15 o'clock tomorrow afternoon for opening of two sets of summer schools beginning Friday, June 13.

Regular summer classes for junior and senior high school students who failed subjects or are behind with particular courses will be held for six weeks at Commercial High school.

The innovation in summer education will be the opening of classes for a three-week period at Bass, Joe Brown and O'Keefe Junior High schools. These courses will be extra-curricular, such as recreation, hiking, nature study, games and music.

There's only ONE MIAMI BEACH!

"SUMMERS ARE SWELL!"

So say the residents! And thousands of visitors agree, with more and more added to the number each year. The trade winds temper the air... beaches are not too crowded... there's more room to golf... fishing is wonderful... and to cap the climax, everything is less. Many hotels and apartments remain open... so you may enjoy winter luxuries now at a song. Write for your copy of our color booklet.

Florida: Partly cloudy and continued warm today and tomorrow. Variable winds, mostly southeasterly on the coast.

Mississippi, Alabama and Extreme Northwest Florida: Partly cloudy to cloudy with widely scattered thunder showers today and tomorrow. Gentle to moderate southeasterly winds on the coast.

Civilian Army In Field Today To Back U.S.O.

Solicitors Seek $90,000 Quota in Fulton, De- Kalb Counties.

Inspired by national and local leaders in a network broadcast last night and a "kick-off" message to workers over a local radio station this morning, Atlanta's civilian army of solicitors will take to the field today in quest of $90,000 as Fulton and DeKalb counties' quota of the United Service Organization fund to finance community centers and recreation programs for service men.

Campaign leaders said last night the local organization had been developed in record time and that seldom, if ever, had volunteers in a civic enterprise undertaken their task with greater enthusiasm and determination. More than two thousand men and women were expected to be on the job this morning.

Large Donors Prompt.

From preliminary reports of the pre-campaign committees, it appears large corporations, business houses and other large donors are responding promptly and liberally to the fund appeal. By tonight, it is believed, this area will be well on towards the goal set for the campaign. However, no consolidated report on subscriptions will be made before Thursday.

The network program last night featured cabinet members, national leaders of the service organization and stars of screen and radio. The "kick-off" broadcast, through Station WSB, this morning will be directed to workers, but it will emphasize the need of recreation facilities and services in cities and towns near training camps, bases and defense industries.

Mayor Speaks.

Mayor Roy LeCraw was expected to reassure the workers that Atlanta could be depended upon to do its part in this campaign, just as it has in other civic undertakings. Miss Enid Day will interview local U. S. O. leaders—Milton W. Bell, area chairman, Trammell Scott, campaign chairman, Mrs. Philip Graves, chairman of the woman's division, and other division leaders.

Rev. Pierce Harris, Major Scott and Mr. Bell spoke to workers in the special gifts division at a meeting last night at the Atlanta Athletic Club. W. C. Harris, is chairman of this division.

They expressed gratification over the response to the appeal for workers and advance subscriptions, and confidence in the outcome of the campaign.

Dental College Here Will Give Degrees to 52

Atlanta-Southern Plans Exercises, Reception at Woman's Club.

The Atlanta-Southern Dental College will confer the degree of doctor of dental surgery upon 52 seniors at the institution's 53rd annual graduation exercise, to be held this evening at 8:30 o'clock in the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium with Dr. Herman L. Turner, pastor of the Covenant Presbyterian church, Atlanta, delivering the principal address.

Dr. J. Russell Mitchell, president of the local chapter of Omicron Kappa Upsilon, national honorary dental society, will present the special awards and Dr. Ralph R. Byrnes, dean of the college, will speak.

Judge to Confer Degrees.

Judge Hugh M. Dorsey, chairman of the board of trustees, will confer the degrees.

The faculty will tender a reception in the banquet hall of the Woman's Club, following the exercises, in honor of the graduates, their relatives and friends.

The gold key, emblem of Omicron Kappa Upsilon Society, will be presented to the following: William David Taylor Jr., John Wesley Zimmerman Jr., William Marion Reed, Richard Jones Westbrook, Frank Augustus Finney Jr. and Avrom Alvin Roobin.

Candidates.

The candidates for graduation are:

Miss Sara Roberts Will Wed Today

The marriage of Miss Sara Louise Roberts, of Monroe, and Clarence Dodds Musser, of Kansas City, Mo., whose engagement was announced Monday, will be a social event taking place today at the Winship chapel of the First Presbyterian church.

Miss Roberts and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orrin Roberts, of Monroe, will motor to Atlanta today for the nuptials.

Rev. William V. Gardner, pastor of the church, and Rev. Charles Lipham, of Monroe, will officiate at high noon in the presence of a limited number of close friends and members of the two families.

Mr. Roberts will give his daughter in marriage and Mrs. James McMullan Roberts, of Monroe, will be the bride-elect's only attendant and Mr. Roberts will be the groom-elect's best man. Judge Garland Watkins will be usher.

The bridal couple will leave for a wedding trip and will go to Kansas City to reside where Mr. Musser is associated in business with the National Labor Relations Board.

Press Women Are Entertained

The Atlanta Woman's Press Club was entertained at tea yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, with Mrs. J. Harry Rogers and Miss Marguerite Steedman as hostesses at the former's home on Huntington road. The president, Miss Annie Lou Hardy, of The Constitution society staff, presided at the meeting preceding the party.

Other officers are Miss Louise Mackay, vice president; Mrs. William Ray, treasurer; Mrs. Frank Rowsey, recording secretary, and Mrs. Kathryn Barnwell Dudley, corresponding secretary.

The home was beautified for the occasion with red roses, and in the dining room, the table was overlaid with a lace cloth and centered with an artistic arrangement of red roses.

Officers' Club Plans Hay Ride

The Boys' High Officers Club of the Boys' High R. O. T. C. unit, holds its last social event of the school year this evening in the form of a hayride for the officers and their dates.

Special guests will include Colonel Philip T. Fry, PMS&T, and Mrs. Fry; Professor J. J. Kelley, of the Boys' High faculty, with Miss Sally Mathews.

Invited are Misses Evelyn Cruze, club sponsor; Jane Gann, Jane Dobbs, Mildred Wood, Dorothy Roulineau, Louise White, Jeanne Lindley, Virginia Wynne, Helen Weill, Mary Frances Hill, Brena Feldman, Anne Cartledge, Margaret Thompson, Betty Bromley, Virginia Gilbert, Virginia Herzog, Marian Summers, Betty Botters, Catherine O'Callaghan, Mary Auwers, Bitsey Rumble, Ra-golda Jacobs, Martha Clift, Jean Kuniansky and Mary Brockman.

Officers of the club include Captain Forrest Ethrie, president; Colonel George Stewart, vice president, and Captain Tom Withorn, treasurer.

Other officers and their dates include Majors Gene Simons, Ralph Blanchard, Bill Lowe, Captains George Little, Wade Rhine, Milton Romm, Edwards McCrory, Wallace Dreyfoos, Ted Kehoe, First Lieutenants Bill Brown, John Pinchback, Harold Minor, Edward David, Byron Pollitt, Robert Davis, Second Lieutenants John Camp, John Morgan, Randy Hayes, Perry Kuniansky, Charlie Brooks, Jack Freedman, and George Steffner.

Miss Coker To Present Pupils on Friday

Anne Spalding and Fiance Choose Bridal Personnel

By SALLY FORTH.

... Mrs. WILLIAM F. SPALDING will leave Tuesday, June 17, for New York to attend the marriage of her daughter, Anne Spalding, to Walter S. Buck, which, as you know, is scheduled for Saturday, June 21. Anne has chosen to be married at a noon ceremony, with the Church of the Resurrection at Rye, N. Y., as the setting.

Jim and Elizabeth Spalding White, of Athens, will leave on the same date to join Mrs. Spalding in New York. Elizabeth will be Anne's matron of honor and only attendant, and Walter has chosen as father, Austin Buck, of Bethlehem, Pa., as his best man. Will Spalding, of Rye, N. Y., will give his sister in marriage and will also be host at a wedding breakfast at the Apawamis Club in Rye following the ceremony. The Rev. Father R. J. Tully will read the marriage service.

Anne and Walter plan to honeymoon at Cape Cod, and upon their return will reside in New York, where Walter is associated with the law firm of Lyon, Lee & Lyon.

On Friday evening preceding the wedding, Austin Buck will entertain at dinner in the beautiful Sert room of the Waldorf-Astoria in compliment to Walter and Anne, the party to assemble the bridal party, the members of the two families, and the guests from a distance. A perfect whirl of parties has already been given in honor of the popular bride couple. Anne and Walter, it seems, spend practically every weekend in Bethlehem with Walter's father, and last Friday evening his mother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Fox, entertained at dinner party at their home in East 7th street.

Another brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard J. Buck, have a beautiful dinner recently at their estate in Far Hills, N. J., in compliment to Walter and Anne, and among other parties to the prenuptial series was the cocktail party at which Mrs. Eleanor Guthrie Neff entertained at her apartment on East 7th street.

• • • WHEN Caroline Sherman and Arthur Howell plighted their troth at a church ceremony on June 14 in New Hartford, N. Y., representative Atlantians will witness the brilliant event. Leaving next Sunday for New Hartford will be Mrs. G. Arthur Howell and her attractive little grandchildren, Katharine and Joseph Cooper. As you know, Mrs. Cooper is Arthur's mother and the little girls are his nieces.

Departing next Thursday for the same destination are Mary Adair and Francis Bird, Katharine and Joe Cooper and Mrs. M. H. Posberg. They will reach New Hartford in time to participate in the social festivities preceding the afternoon ceremony, which takes place in the Calvary church.

Another prominent Atlantian whose name is added to the list of those attending the Sherman-Howell marriage is Hughes Spalding Jr., who will journey to New Hartford to serve as best man for the groom-elect. The parents of the bride-to-be, Mr. and Mrs. Richard U. Sherman, will be hosts at an elegant reception given at Sherrillbrook, their home in New Hartford.

• • • YOUTHFUL Dorothy Brannon, who recently underwent an appendectomy at Piedmont hospital, is the proud owner of a guinea pig given to her as a convalescent present by her aunt, Mrs. L. Travis Brannon.

During her confinement at the hospital Dorothy became friends with Eddie Rickenbacker, who is now well enough to be out, and whom she has heard remark on several occasions that he felt "like a human guinea pig."

For that reason, as well as because she has become very fond of Mr. Rickenbacker, Dorothy has named her new pet "Ricky" in his honor!

The whole hospital staff has taken a keen interest in Dorothy and her pet, and a number of them were on hand yesterday afternoon when "Ricky" was officially christened at a ceremony conducted with a great deal of pomp and solemnity by one of the staff doctors, assisted by an interne.

Naturally, "Ricky" couldn't be properly christened without a godfather standing for him, and since the pet bears his name, Mr. Rickenbacker considered it a distinct tribute that he was allowed to play this important role!

Miss Sara Barton Weds Mr. Nolan.

The marriage of Miss Sara Barton and Billy B. Nolan took place last Sunday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at the First Baptist church in Forest Park, Ga. Rev. Charles E. Hittl performed the ceremony and the musical program was rendered by Miss Juinita Lee. Baskets filled with white gladioli and snapdragons, and stately palms and white candles beautified the altar. Charles Bell sang several selections.

Joe E. Nolan, of Anniston, Ala., was best man for Mr. Nolan, and Walter Hagan and Luther Murphy were ushers.

Miss Zollie Reid was maid of honor and wore a light blue dress, brown accessories and a shoulder bouquet of pink carnations and white roses. Her hat was an off-the-face model of brown straw. Miss Kirstine Yancey was the bridesmaid, and she wore a light blue dress, brown hat and accessories, and a shoulder bouquet of pink carnations and white flowers.

James M. Barton, brother of the lovely bride, gave his sister in marriage. She wore a two-piece model made of brown net, a brown hat trimmed with white pique, white gloves, brown shoes, and carried a brown pocketbook. Her flowers were purple-throated white orchids.

Mr. and Mrs. Nolan departed on their wedding trip to the North Carolina mountains.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Albrecht, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Nolan, of Anniston, Ala.

MR. AND MRS. FREDERICK WESLEY AJAX.

Miss Morrison and Mr. Ajax Wed at Sacred Heart Church

Members of fashionable society assembled yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at Sacred Heart church for the marriage of Miss Anna Blake Morrison, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Morrison, of Atlanta and Orlando, Fla., to Fredrick Wesley Ajax, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Ajax, of Corinth, Miss. Rev. Father John Emmert officiated, and Vincent Hurley, organist, presented a program of music.

The couple spoke their vows before a mass arrangement of stately palms and luxuriant ferns before which was placed a profusion of lilies, snapdragons and gladioli.

Mitchell Cox served as best man for the groom, and escorting the guests to their places were Dr. Marion Benson Jr., Dr. David Smith, Joseph Brennan and Enos Hartman.

Mrs. Robin Brookshire, of Houston, Texas, was the matron of honor and the bride's only attendant. She was becomingly attired in a gown of heavenly blue mousseline de soie, the bodice featuring two bands of embroidered flowers in a lape effect, a matching band designating the waistline. The long, full skirt fell in graceful folds. Her hat was a picture model of matching French braid trimmed with a velvet band and bow that ended in long streamers, and she wore blue gloves. She carried a bouquet of variegated garden flowers in pastel shades.

The radiant young bride, who was given in marriage by her father, presented a beautiful picture in her exquisite bridal gown of ivory tulle, the bodice being molded to her slender figure, and the full skirt sweeping into a short train. The neckline was trimmed with handsome heirloom lace, matching lace forming the coronet that held her tulle veil to her dark curls. She carried a white satin prayer book showered with orchids and valley lilies.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Morrison entertained the bridal party, families and out-of-town guests at a small reception at the Piedmont Driving Club.

The buffet tables were placed on the screened porch adjacent to the ballroom and were centered with floral decorations in white and green. The beautifully appointed bride's table was centered with the tiered wedding cake. Mrs. A. S. Loyless kept the bride's book.

Mrs. Morrison, the bride's mother, received her guests wearing a model of powder blue chiffon trimmed in lace of a darker shade of blue. Her hat and other accessories were blue and her flowers were orchids. Mrs. Ajax, mother of the groom, wore a costume of gray chiffon with harmonizing accessories and a shoulder cluster of orchids.

Later in the evening the young couple left for a wedding trip of several weeks' duration, the bride traveling in a brown linen suit, with which she wore a blouse of white silk jersey and brown and white accessories. A shoulder spray of orchids completed the ensemble. Upon their return they will reside in Atlanta, where they will be prominent and welcomed additions to the younger married contingent.

Among the out-of-town guests present for the ceremony were A. L. Bickers, grandfather of the bride, of Jackson, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. David Ajax, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ajax and Miss Margaret Ajax, of Corinth, Miss., and Miss Rosalie Briscoe, of Washington, District of Columbia.

Miss Burgess Wed To Mr. Verhey

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Burgess announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Anna Frances Burgess, to George Verhey, of Chattanooga, Tenn., which took place on Friday evening, May 30.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Burgess, at 1739 North Decatur road. Dr. Carl A. Devane, of Chattanooga, uncle of the bride, officiated at 8:30 o'clock in the presence of relatives and close friends of the bride couple.

An improvised altar was formed in the living room before the mantel and an effective background was formed of palms and ferns. Centering the background were pedestal baskets filled with white flowers, and flanked on either side by cathedral candelabra holding burning tapers. Throughout the rooms, colorful summer flowers were used as the decorations. An appropriate musical program was presented by Keith Verhey, pianist and brother of the groom, and Miss Cordelia DeVane, of Chattanooga, sang.

The bridal couple were unattended. The bride, a lovely blonde, was beautifully gowned in a becoming model of white pique, fashioned along princess lines, the yoke being made of white lace. She wore a large white pique off-the-face hat and her flowers were a cascade bouquet of white roses and white sweet peas.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Burgess honored their daughter and Mr. Verhey at a reception. The bride's table was covered with a white satin cloth and was centered with a large tiered wedding cake, surrounded with pastel flowers.

Miss Harriett Burgess, of Tallulah Falls, Ga., kept the bride's book, and Miss Marguerite Burgess served punch.

Mrs. Burgess, the bride's mother, was gowned in rose crepe and wore sweet peas and delphinium. Mrs. James Verhey, of Chattanooga, Tenn., the groom's mother, wore black and white sheer, and her flowers were white sweet peas. Mrs. J. G. Travis, the bride's grandmother, wore blue sheer and wore an orchid. Mrs. O. E. Maffett, of Shreveport, La., sister of the bride, wore powder blue chiffon and her flowers were pink.

Mr. Verhey and his bride left for a wedding trip to Miami, and upon their return will reside in Chattanooga. The bride traveled in green and white jersey with white accessories.

The bride is the younger daughter of her parents. Since her graduation from Girls' High school, she has been connected with the Fulton National Bank. Her only sister is Mrs. O. E. Maffett, of Shreveport, La.

Mr. Verhey attended the University of Chattanooga and graduated from Georgia Tech. He has one sister, Mrs. C. H. Phillips, of Jefferson, City, Tenn., and one brother, Keith Verhey. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Verhey, of Chattanooga, and is associated in the building and contracting business with his father.

Can a Married Woman Ever Feel Certain?

Many married women take unnecessary risks with their nerves, health, happiness. Why? Generally because feminine hygiene is considered too personal to be discussed. And so many women use douches of over-strong solutions of acids which can actually burn or scar delicate tissues. Today such risks are needless. For science has given womankind Zonite. Non-poisonous, non-caustic, yet kills germs, bacteria on contact. Actually destroys undesirable odors. Protects personal daintiness. Most important, safe for delicate tissues. Over 20,000,000 bottles already bought. Free Booklet Tells Intimate Facts. Get this frankly written booklet, "Feminine Hygiene Today"—FREE, sent to you postpaid in plain wrapper. ## Miss Turner and Mr. Simpson To Be Married Friday, June 20

Cordial social interest centers in the announcement made today of the wedding plans of Miss Betsy Allen Turner and Warren Creighton Simpson. The marriage will take place at Peachtree Christian church, Friday evening, June 20, at 8 o'clock. Dr. Robert W. Burns will read the marriage vows before an assemblage of friends and relatives of the popular couple.

The bride-elect's sister, Mrs. Fred Sington, will be her only attendant. Mr. Simpson's best man will be Fred Sington, brother of the bride-elect, and his ushers will be James Napier Jr., of Nashville, Tenn., brother of the bride-to-be; Ben Cotton, Julius Lennard and Forest Armstrong, of Atlanta.

Miss Turner will be given in marriage by her father, L. O. Turner, and later her parents will entertain at a reception for the relatives and out-of-town guests.

Mrs. Julius Lennard will keep the bride's book. Assisting in entertaining will be Mrs. J. M. Alsobrook, cousin of the bride-elect; Mrs. H. C. Phipps, Misses Mary Louise Dobbs, Edith Stover and Martha Pattillo. Misses Elizabeth Simpson, cousin of the groom-elect, and Jacqueline McPherson will preside at the punch table.

Miss Turner is being complimented at a round of social affairs. Miss Edith Stover entertained recently at a luncheon at which the bride-elect shared honors with Miss Adel Haggart, also a bride-elect. Miss Turner will be honored by Mrs. Julius Lennard at luncheon Saturday. Miss Betsy DuPuy and James Gilbert entertained last week at a dinner party.

Other parties planned include a steak fry to be given by Mr. and Mrs. James Starnes, honoring the wedding party, and a kitchen shower for Miss Turner to be given by Mrs. Carl C. Fowler, of Decatur. Mrs. J. M. Alsobrook will entertain at a dinner for the couple.

Mrs. L. O. Turner will entertain for her daughter at a trousseau tea Saturday, June 14. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sington will honor the wedding party at a rehearsal dinner at their home in Decatur on Thursday, June 19.

Series of Parties Is Given For Miss Bone and Mr. Gower

Concluding the brilliant series of social affairs that have been given for Miss Frances Bone and Vernon Gower, whose marriage takes place today, was the buffet supper given last evening by Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Henry, uncle and aunt of the bride-elect, at her home on Fairview road. The affair followed the rehearsal for the wedding.

The hosts were assisted in entertaining by their daughter, Miss Dorothy Ann Henry, who will act as her cousin's junior bridesmaid at the nuptials.

The lace covered table in the dining room was centered with a silver bowl filled with white roses, snapdragons and larkspur.

The guests included the members of the bridal party, the families and out-of-town guests.

Earlier yesterday the bride-elect was honored at the bride-test given by Miss Miriam Rudel at her home on North Decatur road, the guests having included a group of close friends.

Miss Helen Hixon also entertained yesterday for Miss Bone, this affair having been in the nature of a luncheon. Covers were laid for Miss Bone, Mrs. Clay Bagley, Mrs. Stiles Kellett, Miss India Upchurch, Miss Mildred McKay, Miss Dorothy Ann Henry, Mrs. Cary Bone and Mrs. W. F. Gower.

Earlier this week Mrs. Cary Bone complimented her daughter at a trousseau tea at her home in Druid Hills.

The lace-covered tea table was centered with a crystal bowl holding pink roses and feverfew. Urns of garden flowers adorned the reception rooms.

Mesdames W. J. Zahn, T. Z. Anderson, T. W. Branch, E. H. Moore, of New York city; Herbert Painter, Clay Bagley, Stiles Kellett and Misses Mildred McKay, Dorothy Ann Henry and India Upchurch assisted in entertaining.

Miss Bone and Mr. Gower were also honored this week at the party given by Mr. and Mrs. Raleigh Drennon at their home on Moreland avenue.

Guests included Miss Bone, Mr. Gower, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Bagley, Mr. and Mrs. Stiles Kellett, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stephens, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Belfield, of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Henry, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Green, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ingram, Mr. and Mrs. Cary Bone; Misses Barbara Green, Indian Upchurch, Mildred McKay, Dorothy Ann Henry, Mrs. E. H. Moore, of New York city; Archie Baird, Charles Justis, George Mongold and Robert Whorton.

Miss Bone was central figure last week at the desert bride party and surprise handkerchief shower given by Mrs. Stiles Kellett at the home of her mother, Mrs. S. H. Beam, on Oxford road.

Guests included Misses Bone, Charlotte Granberry, Mildred McKay, Helen Boone, Sarah Wright, Eleanor Deas, Alyce Walker, Marion Gillooley, Beth McConnell, Mrs. Clay Bagley, Mrs. Bill Stephens and Mrs. Austin Kellett.

Among other parties given for the bride-elect was the recent tea at which the members of the Alpha Tau Chapter of Kappa Delta sorority entertained at the home of Misses Marion and Catherine Gillooley on Briarcliff place.

Miss Stanford Feted at Parties

A series of social affairs is honoring Miss Lydia Stanford, lovely bride-elect, whose marriage to Leonard Stephens Fisher Jr. will be an interesting event of Friday afternoon at St. Luke's Episcopal church.

Today Mrs. John Leake has planned a bathroom shower at her home on Hallman street for Miss Stanford, and tomorrow evening, after the wedding rehearsal, Mrs. W. M. Harper and Mrs. H. H. McCoy entertain at an alfresco shower at the home of the former on Oxford road for the young couple.

Following the wedding, the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alan G. Stanford, will be hosts at a dinner party at the Biltmore hotel for their daughter and Mr. Fisher, the guests to be limited to members of the two families and the wedding party.

Mrs. Jack Paschal was hostess at a shower on Monday evening at her home on Fifth street for Miss Stanford, and on Saturday she was honor guest at the luncheon given by Mrs. M. A. Land, who, entertained at the Mirador Room of the Capital City Club.

Miss Stanford's marriage to Mr. Fisher will be a quiet event taking place at 6 o'clock at St. Luke's church in the presence of only the two families and a limited number of friends. Rev. John Moore Walker will officiate, assisted by Rev. Theodore V. Morrison and the Rev. R. Carl Stoll, of Snyder, N. Y., uncle of the bride-elect.

Steak Fry for Alumni.

Ohio Wesleyan University alumni and friends are invited to a steak fry at Monroe Gardens at 6 o'clock today.

Feeling and appearing cool in hot weather is an art which Rita Johnson, M-G-M actress, seems to have mastered. You can learn a trick, yourself, in the article below.

Here's How to Beat Hot Weather

How many times have you taken a bath to freshen yourself and found that by the time you dressed you were just as hot as before you started? It has happened to me so often in the last few weeks that I got down to business and figured out something to do about it.

That something comes in a big bottle and is pale green in color, delightfully cool to look at. You

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edyth Thomas Wallace.

This Mother: "John needs the association with other children that camp life will give him. To be away from me for awhile will help him, too."

Not This Mother: "Oh, I couldn't bear to have Junior go to camp. He's never been away from me a night in his life and I'd worry about him every minute he was gone."

The decision as to whether a child should go to camp or not should be made on the basis of the child's needs—not on Mother's emotional reaction to the plan.

Selection of Boy's Wife Should Be His Problem Instead of His Mother's

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie:

I am 19. I am poor. I live in the slums. My mother wants me to marry a girl in the neighborhood. This I do not like. The girl drinks, smokes, curses and never stays at home. Every time I take her out she spends a lot of my money and calls me cheap because I will not buy her whisky.

I do not drink, smoke or have any other bad habit. I love a fine girl. Her parents are better off than I am, but they have been nice to me and call me "son." They want us to marry. I have no job, but her father has offered me one. This girl can cook, enjoys staying home and is considerate of me and does not smoke, drink or curse.

Here is the point: Must I marry to satisfy my mother and never know happiness or marry the girl I know will give me a happy home? If I do not settle this I will go crazy. I love my mother. I love the second girl. What must I do?

UNHAPPY.

Dear Unhappy:

By all means marry the girl whom you love, who will make you happy and who will provide a home for you. Remember it is your life and not your mother's. It is strange to me that she should want her son to marry such a person as you describe. Most mothers are very ambitious for their sons and want a girl for their wives who is as near perfection as possible. Perhaps your mother has never met the girl whom you love? Why not try to bring them together and see if there cannot be a change of heart on the part of your mother? But do not marry to satisfy your mother and be as unhappy as you would be if you married the girl such as you first describe. The other girl sounds fine, and with the approval of her parents, plus a job, what are you waiting for? Go on and ask her to marry you. You better get all the happiness while you can.

SNEAKING OUT FOR DATES WILL GIVE BOY WRONG IMPRESSION.

Dear Dixie:

There is a boy in the army whom I like very much, but it's the same old story. My parents object to him and do not want me to go with him. He is as good as the average boy and is very nice to me. We have discussed marriage. He thinks since his salary is small we should wait until he is free to marry. Then, too, we could not be together now. He tells me to go with other boys and he goes with other girls. I do, but do not care for anybody but him. He is coming home and wants me to spend the night with a girl friend so we can go out together. I do not like to do that to be with him, but since that is the only way we can be together what do you think I should do? Should I go somewhere and meet him or what?

WORRIED GIRL.

I do not think it would be a good idea for you to sneak out to have a date with this boy. If your parents do not object to his coming to see you at your home, continue to let him come there. Tell your parents that he is coming on a certain date and that inasmuch as he is on leave so seldom, why couldn't they make an exception for one time? If they refuse, try to get them to tell you why they will not let you go out with him. Tell them that you respect them too much to sneak out and date this boy, and that since you are old enough to have company and dates you are old enough to go out with this boy. It is not a very good idea to let a boy think that you will run around with him against the wishes of your parents. He will think a lot more of you, too. Since the marriage is so indefinite and since he suggests your going with others, I think I would consider my parents' wishes rather than his. If he is worthy of you they will let you go with him.

MY DAY: Our Young People Need Rehabilitation

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Monday.—We left Hyde Park early this morning to drive up to Burlington, Vt., where I am attending a tea at the University of Vermont, and then giving a lecture in the evening for the Women's Auxiliary of the Mary Fletcher Hospital. This column is filed on the way, so I can tell you little of the trip until tomorrow.

I am very much pleased, because it looks as though we are going to have a new receiving home for children in Washington, D. C. During the past few months it has been possible to place children who are not delinquent in foster homes instead of the receiving home. This seems to me a great step forward.

At the other end of the welfare picture, where the old people are concerned, they tell me that certain very definite improvements have been made out at "Blue Plains." The young doctor in charge there has been able to hospitalize some of his worst cases at Gallinger hospital and to improve the care of those who are bedridden in the home. The food, I am told, is much better and it is served hot.

This is an advance and yet I hope very much that eventually the four institutions—the National Training School for Girls, the Industrial Training School, the Home for the Aged and one other industrial school which have not been able to develop properly under the conditions which they have faced—are finally, the rehabilitation of emotional natures that have known too little security and love to make normal growth possible.

I wish very much that all the institutions for young people could be thought of primarily from the point of view of rehabilitation . . . rehabilitation of bodies which have been insufficiently fed, of minds which have not been able to develop properly under the conditions which they have faced and, finally, the rehabilitation of emotional natures that have known too little security and love to make normal growth possible.

Demure Play Dress and Bonnet Match

By Lillian Mae.

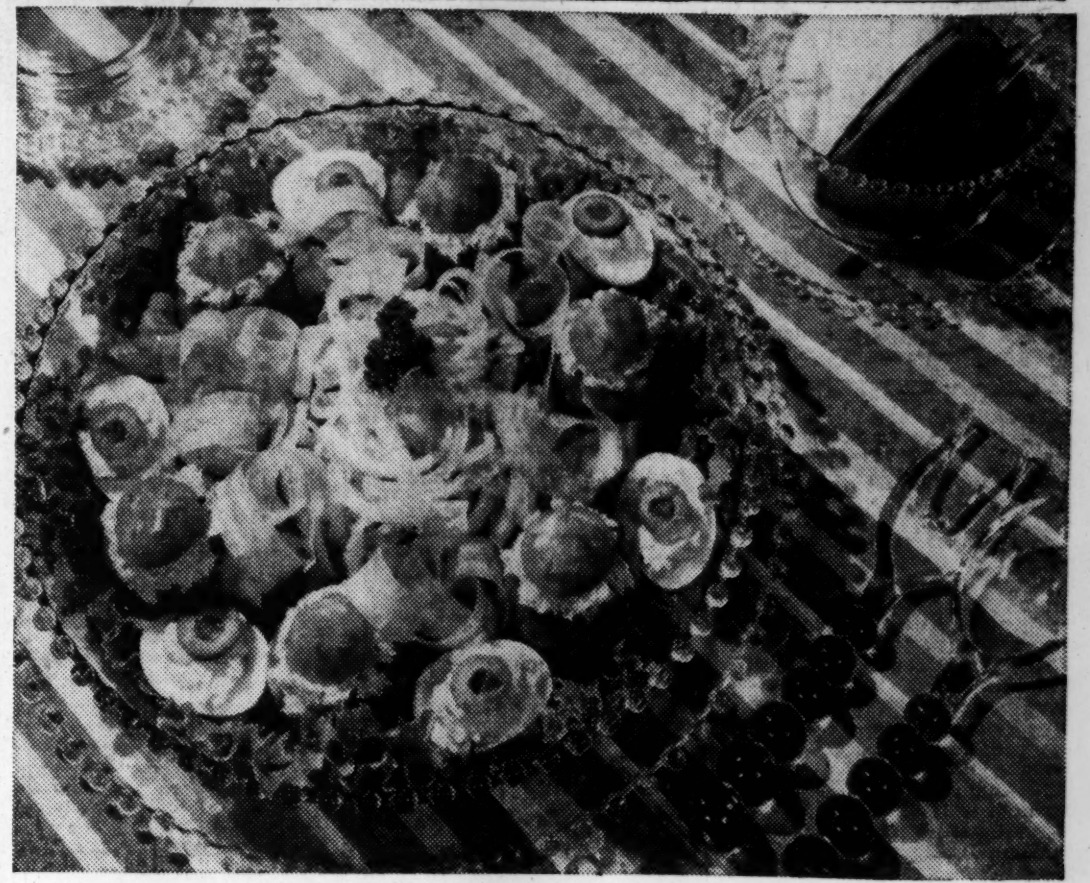

Pattern 4330.

You can dress your little girl in those demure old-fashioned styles that are currently so popular—and still let her romp in perfect, cool comfort! Here's proof, in Pattern 4330 by Lillian Mae—a pinafore-dress and a bonnet that are really charming. The pinafore, useful as an apron, too, buttons saucily down the back; its perky skirt is gathered below a trim waistband. Crisp ruffles flare out from the edges of the bodice and an optional sash may tie in back. The piquant bonnet has a wide, protecting eye-shade and under-the-chin ties. Last of all, simple little one-piece panties are included. Choose a vivid, crisp cotton for this style . . . add gay ricrac . . . and use the sewing instructor to speed your stitches!

Pattern 4330 is available in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6, entire ensemble, takes 2-7-8 yards 35-inch fabric. Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly, size, name, address and style number.

This summer, plan to have a complete, attractive wardrobe—with the Lillian Mae Pattern Book for your sewing guide! All the smart, original designs in this book are promptly available in simple, accurate patterns. There are styles for every age and activity, with feminine sheers and prints, "tomboy" playclothes, beach modes, travel wear, soap 'n' water cottons, new accessories. Order a book today—it costs just 15 cents! Send your order to Lillian Mae Pattern Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

A curled vegetable salad plate is both pretty and good.

Salads Are Rich Vitamin Source

By Sally Saver.

Our all-out program for defense is making America more vitamin conscious than ever before. Fresh fruits and vegetables, particularly the raw ones, are rich indeed in these life-giving, vital substances. Both health and beauty are found in this salad of raw curled vegetables made this way:

Curled Vegetable Salad Plate.

Select uniform shaped ripe tomatoes. Cut center out of each in a cone shape. Save these for topping the finished salad. Scoop out the remaining centers from the tomatoes, combine with flaked tuna fish, and blend with French dressing. Allow to marinate for one-half hour. Replace this mixture in the tomato cups and top with the tomato curls. Chill thoroughly before serving. Place on salad plate with lettuce, carrot and celery curls. To prepare the carrot curls, wash and scrape carrots and slice very thin. Place in ice water to curl. Celery curls are prepared in the same manner. Garnish salad plate with deviled eggs, topped with slices of stuffed olives. Serve with French dressing.

Basic French Dressing.

1-2 teaspoon salt.
1-2 teaspoon sugar.
1-4 teaspoon paprika.
Dash white pepper.
1-2 teaspoon dry mustard.
1-2 cup salad oil.
1-4 cup cider vinegar or lemon juice.

Combine first five ingredients in a jar and blend well. Add vinegar, cover and shake; add oil and shake again thoroughly. Just before using, shake again. Or simply mix ingredients together in a bowl and beat with mixer until well blended—about 3 minutes. This makes 3-4 cup dressing. Questions about foods, recipes, cooking and serving will be answered by Sally Saver. Write or phone The Constitution or WA. 6565.

Weight Lost by Perspiring Is Quickly Regained

By Dr. William Brady.

Probably the all time record is still held by the man who reduced 20 pounds in seven hours in a sweat bath. He took the bath walking, in the desert sun, when the temperature in the shade was 104 degrees F. In the course of the seven hours he drank 13 pounds, a little more than 1-2 gallons of water, so his net loss amounted to seven pounds. I haven't the actual data to prove it, but I'd be willing to wager 10 to 1 that the man regained the weight so lost within the succeeding 30 hours. That is what practically always happens when any appreciable loss of weight is achieved by sweating—the weight of water and salt excreted in the sweat is replaced within the next day or so by increased intake of water and salt. And practically, while we're on the subject, that is all there is in a sweat in any circumstance or state of health—water and salt. Nothing "toxic" or poisonous to speak of or worry about.

A man of 60, with a bad heart, high blood pressure and divers other pathological conditions, doesn't believe in the value of a reasonable amount of exercise daily, thinks it is nonsense, drinks, as he insists, only moderately—as I think, even a minimum amount is injurious to a person in his condition—and eats like an honest working man. He keeps piling on slacker flesh. When cautioned about it he says that doesn't worry him, for when he gets time he'll go and have it sweated and massaged off. Well, maybe at 60 the poor fellow is reconciled to his fate. But in his attitude towards the need of reducing there is a familiar ring. Most men and women who are conscious of encroaching obesity take a similar attitude. Certainly they intend to reduce, and they are going on a diet presently, and that is as far as the good intention goes.

It is far more satisfactory from every point of view to remain steadily on a reasonable and not difficult diet than it is to go on a rigid one even for a limited time.

Crackers Drop See-Saw Battle to Vols in Third Game of Series, 7-6

All in The Game

BY JACK TROY

Not Guilty NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 3.—A Cracker fan in Copperhill, Tenn., is all riled up over a recent column in which I had a few pertinent things to say regarding the Knoxville baseball club.

This Copperhill fan doesn't take issue with anything said about the Smokies' stalling; he simply has placed the wrong interpretation on a word. He is so hot about it and makes such forthright insinuations as to what we are if we don't print the letter, there isn't much else to do.

However, I am not going to use his name, simply to save him considerable embarrassment later on. The thought expressed is admirable. The letter follows:

"Dear Jack Troy:

"I am a constant reader of The Constitution and have been for years but I have never read as cheap a piece in your column before as you have about the Smokies stalling Friday. If they were stalling you did not have any reason at all to bring the 'nigger' in it as you call them. We up here don't use that word at all. Now understand, Jack, I am a white man but you know as well as thousands of others do that the cullard people was not playing. So why bring them in it? You owe the cullard which is many in Atlanta an apology. Now I will see if you have the nerve to put this in your column. I am sending copy to Ralph McGill so I will be looking to see this in your column. That is if you don't get cold feet and stall like the Smokies did. Remember I am a white man but I believe in fair play for every one."

Use of the word "niggardly" explains the foregoing letter. The gentleman from Copperhill must not have read closely.

I have skipped over words like that myself and put the wrong interpretation on them.

Be that as it may, I want to assure the gentleman from Copperhill that those of us in Atlanta appreciate the Negro fans. They have turned out in greater numbers than ever before for games this season at Ponce de Leon park, and I think we can rightly claim that they are among the most loyal fans in all baseball.

Fan Stirred It was the intention of this department to let the Knoxville matter drop, inasmuch as nothing can be done about it, but this does not seem to be the consensus of Atlanta baseball followers.

It remains a matter of resentment with men, women and children that the incident was treated so lightly. Numerous letters decry involvement of Atlanta and they question letting Knoxville off with only a reprimand.

The men who run baseball may be surprised to know that fans have access to rule books and are, in many cases, well read. Most all of the letters received complained that the umpires did not do their duty when they failed to follow the set rule on stalling.

A 9-0 triumph for Atlanta would have been more satisfactory than the farce which followed. That's no guesswork. It's the expression of the fans themselves.

Lou Gehrig It is difficult to write anything about Lou Gehrig, who was one of the most durable players the game has ever known, and yet in an incredibly short time was cut down by the ravages of a dreadful malady.

From a force of strong man he was reduced to a hopeless cripple in less than two years' time. We saw the beginning of his trouble in the spring three seasons ago when the Yankees passed through Atlanta on an exhibition tour.

Even then the old Iron Horse was having trouble running and he was flinching from pitches at the plate. He became progressively worse after the season started and finally asked Manager Joe McCarthy to bench him.

Even then they didn't know, neither the Yankees nor Lou himself, that he was the victim of an incurable disease that would take his life before he reached his prime. A form of paralysis struck him down.

It is just a bit ironical that in a game that has known so many characters and two-fisted drinkers, Gehrig was an example of clean living. Although born of German immigrants, he did not have the Germans' inherent fondness for beer. He was very moderate in his habits. He had to be to play the game as many times consecutively over so many years as he did.

'Major Leaguers, Eh?' A group of young men in Atlanta recently proposed getting a big league baseball franchise for the Crackers.

It is not only out of the question but also is embarrassing to baseball writers from the Gate City. For instance, when Nashville broke the league home-

Chipman Fails As Lochbaum, Nowak Finish

Mailho Breaks Back Into Lineup as Pinch-Hitter and Delivers.

BY JACK TROY.

CONSTITUTION Sports Editor. SULPHUR DELL, NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 3.—The Crackers were charitable tonight and the Nashville Vols, winning 7 to 6 before a ladies' night crowd of more than 6,000, sliced a full game off the Atlanta club's lead.

One hectic inning cost the Crackers the ball game. It was the fifth in which the Vols scored four runs. Emil Lochbaum, who had relieved Bob Chipman in the fourth, went to pieces in the fifth and was helped to his first loss by Herb Crompton, who let in one of the runs on a passed ball.

It was a perfect game for the large crowd. The Vols sliced the Cracker lead to six and one-half games and the crowd was royally entertained by the sight of Manager Paul Richards being chased by Umpire Paul Blackard.

The Crackers missed scoring chances in the early innings and then aided the Vols in scoring some of their runs. It was just one of those nights.

Ninth inning pitcher lasted. Baron Poffenberger was relieved by John Sain in the fifth, and Sain was the winning pitcher.

Lochbaum's loss was his first of the season. He had won five straight.

NINTH INNING THREAT.

The Crackers twice were ahead in the ball game and were making the old college try in the ninth when a close decision at second base nipped their rally. If Glock had been safe instead of out, the Crackers would have had Burge on third and Glock on second with only one out. Instead, they had Burge on third with two out—Richards out of the game.

Final game of the series is scheduled for Wednesday night, with Jinx Poindeux facing Russ Meers, another lefty. They were due to pitch tonight, but there was a change in the plans of both managers.

Mailho returned to the lineup late in the game as a pinch hitter, got a hit and then went to right field tonight. Mailho probably won't start the final game, however, as he isn't fully recovered from an attack of neuritis.

LACK PUNCH.

Lack of punch kept the Crackers from scoring in the first two innings. Thomassie doubled with one away in the first and was left stranded. Glock led off with a double and also was left on base.

Chipman loaded the bases on walks after two men were out in the first but the Vols couldn't capitalize.

A Vol error let in a couple of Cracker runs in the third. Chipman led off with a walk. Bates singled. Thomassie forced Bates. He advanced on a wild pitch. Ryan hit to third and Rogers hesitated between throwing to the plate and first. Then he threw wild to first and both Chipman and Thomassie scored.

The Vols scored their first run in the last half of the third. Culler and Shilling hit doubles. Hockett singled. Hockett and Fleming fled out. Culler scored after the catch of Fleming's fly.

VOLS TAKE LEAD.

The Vols went ahead in the fourth. Tatum and Olsen socked Sulbur. Dell doubled. Rogers grounded out and Tatum scored. A form of paralysis struck him down.

It is just a bit ironical that in a game that has known so many characters and two-fisted drinkers, Gehrig was an example of clean living. Although born of German immigrants, he did not have the Germans' inherent fondness for beer. He was very moderate in his habits. ## Gehrig Paid Tribute By Baseball Notables

Men and Women From All Walks Mourn Death of Lou; Funeral Services Scheduled Today.

BY JUDSON BAILEY.

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Lou Gehrig in the same semi-privacy in which the great first baseman of the New York Yankees battled disease for two years.

From all parts of the country messages of condolence today poured into Gehrig's home and the offices of the ball club. Baseball notables arranged to be here for the last rites, and fans who never had been closer to him than the bleachers of Yankee stadium filed past his bier for one final look at the unforgettable "Iron Horse," who played 2,130 consecutive games in 14 years.

For hours after his body was placed on view in an uptown funeral parlor tonight, baseball fans and notables filed past the bier. Babe Ruth, his old teammate, and Bill Klem, veteran National League umpire, were among those who arrived early, threaded their way through the huge crowd outside the building and paid tribute at the flower-banked casket.

A minute of silence in Gehrig's memory was observed at the National League games at the Polo Grounds and Ebbets Field and flags on public buildings throughout this metropolis were lowered to half-staff at the direction of Mayor F. H. LaGuardia.

PUBLIC VIEWS BODY.

The mourning was so general that arrangements were made for the public to view the body this afternoon and night instead of limiting this privilege to intimate friends. During the hours the casket was open, first at the Church of the Divine Paternity in Upper Manhattan and later at Christ Episcopal church in the pretty Riverdale section of The Bronx, hundreds of persons passed through.

They included residents of the neighborhood, policemen, laborers, men and women from all walks of life, and nine boys fumbling baseball caps and gloves in awkward hands as they looked for the last time on an oligarch. They were members of a class baseball team at the High School of Commerce, where Gehrig himself began his sports career.

But the funeral at 9 a. m. (EST) tomorrow at Christ Church, a little chapel a block from Gehrig's home, was to be limited to the family and friends.

Manager Joe McCarthy and Catcher Bill Dickey of the Yankees arranged to fly here from Detroit. Dickey, who was Gehrig's roommate in the ball club's travels for many years, some time ago promised his friend that he would come from wherever he might be in the event of death.

William Harridge, president of the American League, in which Gehrig starred, headed from Chicago in company with Leslie O'Connor, secretary to Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis.

Honorary pallbearers named included Mayor LaGuardia, McCarthy, Dickey, John Kieran, sports columnist of the New York Times; Christy Walsh, publicist; John Maher and Mary Fraschi, members of the Municipal Parole Commission on which Gehrig served for the last year and a half; Dr. Caldwell B. Esselstyn, his personal physician, and four members of the staff of Mayo Clinic, Dr. Paul O'Leary, Henry Woltman, Harold C. Harbin and Bayard T. Horton.

Edward G. Barrow, president of the Yankees, headed a group of Gehrig's close personal friends who were named as ushers.

Following the services tomorrow, the body was to be cremated. The death of the 37-year-old former star ball player, who shared with his one-time teammate, Babe Ruth, most of the slugging records in baseball, came peacefully last night while his wife, the former Eleanor Twitchell of Chicago; his parents, his mother-in-law and his physician stood by.

He had dropped out of the Yankee lineup voluntarily May 2,

Gehrig Knew He Was Done, Kept Fighting

BY GAYLE TALBOT.

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—For months before his death Lou Gehrig withstood a series of injections that would have "thrown a horse," President Ea Barrow, of the Yankees, disclosed today as he mourned the tragedy of his great star.

"He knew there was no known cure, but that couldn't stop him from fighting—not that boy," said Barrow with evident pride. "He insisted on taking this terribly strenuous treatment, despite his condition, and he stood up under it. He never admitted he was going to lose."

"When I left him the last time, Friday night, he was sitting up looking out serenely across the Hudson. I kissed him on the head and as I walked out he said: 'I'll beat it, Boss. Keep those Yankees up.' It was the last thing he said to me."

Gehrig was wasted down to about 150 pounds, Barrow said, a loss of some 60 pounds from his playing weight. From the front Lou's distress scarcely was discernible, except that his hair had gone almost white on the sides. His back, though, had been hollowed by the disease. He needed assistance in eating and in lighting his cigarette.

"At least, his death was painless and peaceful," said Barrow. "He went to sleep about noon yesterday still thinking he would get well, and he just didn't wake up."

As the Yankee president spoke his secretary handed him a letter addressed in childish scrawl to Lou Gehrig, in care of the club. "They're always writing to him," Barrow commented.

He had to receive an injection in his back daily for two years, rest punctually and retire at 8:30 each night. But this restrictive routine never interfered with a consuming passion to the task of rehabilitating other unfortunate.

HITLER GEARED FOR DASH WEST

Writer Van Paassen Warns U. S.
To Beat Nazis to Strategic Dakar

(This is the second of two articles taken from "The Time Is Now" (The Dial Press), by Pierre Van Paassen, noted author whose "Days of Our Years" has sold more than 300,000 copies. Van Paassen is a former member of The Constitution staff.)

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

For North American Alliance.

The man who peddled postcards in Vienna twenty years ago aspires to be the ruler of the world. That is not an easily true. If Hitler had no designs on the Western Hemisphere, why did he not stop after the Austrian "anschluss," the rape of Czechoslovakia, the defeat of Poland and the debacle of France? What prevented him from merely holding on to his gains and, if England persisted in fighting on, from breaking the blockade by submarine and aerial warfare? Was he not in a perfect position to demand and obtain a complete revision of the Versailles treaty, the aim for which he had presumably unleashed the war? Why did Berlin need the Tokyo military pact? For what purpose are the Nazis filtering into Tangier? Why are they hammering at Egypt? And why does Hitler need to capture the Mediterranean?

On Verge of War.

No, if we are on the verge of war it is not because our leadership has led us there. It is because, realistically and practically speaking, American security and independence are so imminently threatened. It is because "that European war" is a world war in which distances and Maginot lines on land or sea and even powerful navies no longer provide protection.

Hitler's war machine is capturing one strategic world position after the other. It is out to seize the colonial possessions of the European nations it has subdued. It is geared for a supreme dash against the Western Hemisphere.

Armament programs are useless if you are outmaneuvered strategically before the fighting begins. A defense structure is futile if you are outflanked before the first shot is fired. Czechoslovakia was unquestionably the best-prepared and best-equipped country in Europe, perhaps in the world (in proportion to her size, of course).

Never Had a Chance.

But what did it avail her after Hitler had marched into Austria and had strategically eliminated France and Russia? Her wealth of defense materiel only helped Hitler on his march into Poland.

The defenses into which America is pouring billions of dollars will protect us only if we do not permit the Axis powers to outplay us strategically before the inevitable attack is launched. And inevitable it is!

Hitler can be stopped only if his path to Dakar is blocked. The world-wide pincer movement of the Axis against the Western Hemisphere can be frustrated if the African continent is not delivered to the Nazi on a silver platter. For French West Africa is strategically, the Spain of the Battle of the Atlantic.

U. S. Is Vulnerable.

Once under German control, it places the United States in a position as vulnerable as that of the British Empire. If Hitler is permitted to take possession of the African Atlantic coastline, the defense of the Western Hemisphere becomes well-nigh impossible. He will then be poised for a leap across the ocean to the South American republics, which are by no means ready to defy him.

Hitler can be stopped only if his march around the oceans, and his conquest of Europe can therewith be nullified, if a serious obstacle is placed in his path either at Dakar or in Egypt, in Persia or in British India.

Hitler Must Be Stopped.

Hitler must be prevented from marching around the oceans. He must be prevented from seizing bases in West Africa. He must be prevented from effecting a juncture with the Japanese armies in Upper India and thereafter taking the Singapore base by a joint southward march with the Japanese forces from the land side, down through Siam and the Malay Peninsula. Hitler must be prevented from encircling the American continent.

To prevent the encirclement of this hemisphere it is our first interest to keep our attention glued on the African continent. It is there that the land battle for the Atlantic will be fought—unless West Africa falls into Hitler's lap by reason of the fact that so far there is nobody on the spot to prevent it.

What To Do?

What can we do about it? We should, without delay, either by agreement with Vichy or by force, send an expeditionary force to Dakar. Unless Petain's government cynically acknowledges itself a military ally of Germany, it cannot and will not oppose this move. Vichy surely realizes that American occupation of Dakar would be only temporary and would, as a matter of fact, assure France's colonial rights in Africa after the war.

A similar course of action must be launched with respect to the Cape Verde, Canary and Azores islands.

Would this mean America's entry into the war?

Means U. S. Entry.

It probably would, although Germany might hesitate to declare war on the United States, for fear of the reaction it would have on her own people.

We must realize in the first place that aid to Great Britain, the mighty bulwark in the enemy's path to our shores, is American self-defense, American self-help. In short, that in aiding Britain, America is fighting for its own safety.

Secondly, we should draft an immediate plan of full co-ordination and co-operation between the American and British navies to maintain control over the world's waterways. Acting as one unit, under one command, the United States and Britain's naval power can still stop Hitler. Convoys of our ships of war materials by the American fleet is, of course, essential.

Demonstration Needed.

It is furthermore essential that the American fleet stage a naval demonstration at Singapore. The Tokyo government must in an unmistakable manner be made to know that we are through with appeasing Japan, that we will not send another ounce of scrap iron or oil to support her iniquitous war against our Chinese friends.

We must take the backbone out of Japanese aggression by giving Tokyo to understand that we fully appreciate the implications of the Nippon-Soviet treaty.

For by the pact concluded at Moscow in April, the government of Prince Konoye has thought to obtain a diplomatic instrument with which to force America into a perpetual state of hesitation. Ostensibly, Russia has relieved Japan of preoccupations in Outer Mongolia and Manchuria, where Russia, it should be borne in mind, never threatened Japan.

Japan's Plan.

America is to be frightened with a Japan that can now concentrate all her attention on military and economic expansion in a southerly direction on the Asiatic continent and the Malay archipelago.

While India is still in British hands, therefore, an American force should be landed at Bombay to take up positions in the north-west provinces. This will cause Germany to halt her march to the East and will stop Japan from marching southward, failing that, it will haul back the Axis partners from a territory which would be the last link in the encirclement of America on the Pacific side.

If we are to stop Hitler, we must let him know now where we consider our line of defense to begin, and if he crosses that line we must be in a position to fight him.

Long War Seen.

It may mean a long war. But time will count against Hitler only if we are determined to fight him for years, if we wear him out and engage his armies at a point chosen by ourselves, while from the British Isles as a base and set Asia ablaze from one end to the other with the ideal of democracy.

We must proclaim our war aims: A free Germany in a free Europe in a free world! We must announce these aims over the head of the Nazi government to the now silent and inarticulate and regimented majority of the conquered peoples—and even to the German people—and rouse them to help us in lifting "the curse of Hitler" from the brows of all men.

We must promise their freedom to the peoples of India and China, set Asia ablaze from one end to the other with the ideal of democracy.

Peoples Must Know.

The peoples must know—from a British government that will have purged itself of Toryism and Halifaxism—that the old game of imperialism and chicanery and exploitation will not start all over again if they join us in this second attempt to make and keep the world safe for democracy.

The Jews, driven from pillar to post and with the ground cut off from under their feet, must have their homeland restored on both sides of the Jordan; the prisoners must be set free from the Nazi concentration camps, and everywhere the banners of the peoples must go forward.

Then the end will come for Adolf Hitler, and his dream of world conquest will vanish like mist in the rising sun of a world democracy. (Copyright, 1941, by Pierre Van Paassen)

Russian Radio Lags.

Russia's radio industry is lagging and cannot produce even cry: sets that could be used in the vicinity of a broadcasting station, according to delegates to a recent meeting of communications workers in Moscow. The radio factories complain that frequently they cannot get materials or equipment needed, although Moscow has the things desired. This condition was said to be partly due to the apathy of local Communist party and other leaders toward the value of good communications.

Heroine Honored.

Thursday Island recently paid homage to the memory of a brave native woman, Mauara Lifu, it is reported in Brisbane, Australia. In the Thursday Island cemetery stands a memorial to her erected by the natives. Mauara Lifu, a Darnley Island girl, saved the lives of two white men when no fewer than 295 natives and at least seven whites were drowned in a cyclone that smashed 73 pearly luggers off Cape Melville in 1899. She supported them through raging seas and got them ashore.

LAKE LURES WILDFOWL.

Thousands of geese and ducks settling into the shallows of the newly formed Grand lake at Bernice, Okla., are plaguing farmers of the vicinity. Farmers complained to the Grand River Dam Authority, builder of the dam that formed the lake. It was sympathetic but helpless.

AP Feature Service
In addition to the heavier "battle wagons," the U. S. Navy has numerous ships of smaller size. Here are three types:

160 IN SERVICE
DESTROYERS—High speed commerce raiders and reconnaissance vessels equipped with torpedoes, depth charges and guns of 5 inches or less. They are of 1,000 to 1,850 tons and carry 125 to 175 men.

105 IN SERVICE
SUBMARINES—Armed with guns, torpedoes and mines. The largest submarine has a displacement of 2,250 tons and the smallest, 550 tons. Carry 30 to 65 men. Duty is to locate enemy fleets, observe enemy forts and operate against enemy commerce.

NUMBER IN SERVICE
UNREPORTED
MOTOR TORPEDO BOATS—Called the "mosquito fleet," these are fast and maneuverable boats with a displacement of about 30 tons. Each carries four torpedoes and, powered by gasoline engines, can travel at better than 45 knots. Duty is coastal and harbor patrol.

The Navy also has a large number of "ships of the train," such as hospital, repair and supply ships, and mine sweepers and layers. They are in regular Navy service, and are not to be confused with the Merchant Marine.

FSA Announces Staff Changes In Southeast

Vansant Becomes Regional Chief of Rehabilitation Work.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 3.—Changes in the administrative staff of the Farm Security Administration, involving four of the most widely known figures in rehabilitation work in the southeast, were announced today by the United States Department of Agriculture.

James H. Wood, since 1936 assistant director of the fifth region (Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina and Florida), has been appointed regional director of the fifth region, which embraces 11 northeastern states from Maine to Maryland, and the District of Columbia.

Goes to Native Home. Engaged in teaching, business and rehabilitation work in Georgia and the southeast since he returned from military service overseas in 1918, Wood is a native of the region to which he returns as director. He was born in Somersville, Conn., and graduated from the Connecticut Agricultural College in 1912.

From 1918 until 1931, Wood was professor of poultry husbandry in charge of poultry extension work at the Georgia State College of Agriculture. In 1934 he became assistant director of the fifth region, which embraces 11 northeastern states from Maine to Maryland, and the District of Columbia. He was born in Somersville, Conn., and graduated from the Connecticut Agricultural College in 1912.

Succeeding Wood in charge of resettlement program in the fifth region will be Julian Brown, who has been serving as assistant director in charge of rehabilitation. Brown, a native of Alabama and graduate of Auburn, has been a marketing specialist of the United States Department of Agriculture, an extension service horticulturist, and state director of FSA in Alabama, before joining the regional staff as assistant director.

Into Brown's post as chief of the rehabilitation work in the fifth region comes R. L. Vansant, who has been prominent figure in agricultural work in Georgia since 1920. A native of Douglasville, Ga., educated at the State College of Agriculture, he served as county extension agent in Murray, Walker and Cobb counties for nearly 15 years. He was appointed director of rural rehabilitation in Georgia at start of the program in 1934 and has served as state director since that program was merged with FSA's comprehensive plan of aid for low-income and landless farmers.

Succeeded by Young. Vansant will be succeeded as Georgia state director by Edgar C. Young, for years a vocational teacher at Elberton, and a district supervisor, specialist and staff worker in the rehabilitation program since its beginning. After obtaining degrees in agriculture at Clemson and the University of Georgia, he entered the FSA service in its early days of resettlement and rehabilitation activities, served with the national organization for a year in Washington, and recently has been associate state farm management specialist in South Carolina.

Accompanying announcement of the appointments was a statement by E. S. Morgan, director of the fifth region, who said that the four men involved have made valuable contributions to the security of depressed farm groups in the southeast.

at the COURTHOUSE Fulton county commissioners will hold their monthly meeting at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the courthouse.

Skeleton crews manned offices at the Fulton county courthouse yesterday as scores of employees took a day off in observance of Jefferson Davis' birthday. Courts broke down about 10 o'clock in the morning and adjourned for the day.

Frank Fling, clerk of the Fulton county commission, yesterday was on an important mission to LaGrange, Ga. He left to be present at the marriage of his daughter, Miss Frankie Fling, to Gardner Newman, which was solemnized there.

STAR VISITOR—Miss Anne Nagel, of Hollywood, will arrive in Atlanta by plane this afternoon to be the guest of honor at an aviation ball tonight at the Shrine Mosque when a "Miss Georgia Aviation" will be chosen to represent the state at the air carnival in Birmingham.

Aero Club Here Poulan School Plans Welcome Head Missing; For Anne Nagel Attack Feared

Film Actress Will Be Honor Guest Tonight at Aviation Ball.

Miss Anne Nagel, a luscious-looking lady from Hollywood, Cal., will arrive in Atlanta by plane this afternoon to be the guest of the Atlanta Aero Club tonight at its Aviation Ball at the Shrine Mosque.

While here Miss Nagel will present a silver trophy to one of 30-odd young ladies who are seeking the title of Miss Georgia Aviation—the winner to represent this state at the eleventh annual National Air Carnival to be held at Birmingham next Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Nagel and her manager, Harlan Hobbs, will be met at the airport here by a committee from the Aero Club, and by representatives of Universal Studios, for whom Miss Nagel stars in pictures. Welcome Committee.

Among the air-minded Atlantans who will go out to the airport to present Miss Nagel with the keys to the city will be Winship Nunnally, chairman of the committee staging the aviation ball; Dr. Fraser Adams, president of the Aero Club; Mrs. Adams, who will present Miss Nagel a bouquet of roses, and Directors William K. Jenkins, Ezra Howington and Bob White.

From the airport Miss Nagel will be taken on a flying tour of the city, with a visit to the Cyclorama if there is time. Afterward, at 7 p. m., she will be the guest of Harry Graham, district manager, and W. M. Richardson, local manager of Universal Studios, at a dinner at the Variety Club headquarters in the Henry Grady hotel.

Evening Program. The festivities start at the Shrine mosque at 9 o'clock, with dancing, and the judging of the entries for the title of Miss Georgia Aviation will begin at 10. It is Atlanta's party, and the public is invited. The price of tickets is $1 per couple, the money to be used in defraying the expenses of the party.

The winner of the contest, which will be judged on a basis of beauty, brains and personality, will receive a free plane trip to the Birmingham Air Carnival, where she and a chaperon will be guests of the city of Birmingham and the state of Alabama.

At the City Hall

Hugh K. Marshall, personnel technician in the city personnel department, yesterday was ordered to report to the Lawson General hospital on the old Camp Gordon site for a year's active military service beginning Thursday. He is assigned to the administration headquarters.

Councilman Cecil Hester, of the first ward, yesterday was on a fishing trip to Florida with a group of friends. He is expected back the latter part of the week.

Applications were opened yesterday by the city personnel board for the position of sanitarian in the health department. Salary will be $160 monthly plus a $50 monthly automobile allowance. The limit for acceptable applicants must be between 18 and 51 and those wishing to apply must do so before 4:30 p. m., Friday, June 20.

Mayor LeCraw yesterday held the unofficial title of "Beau Brummell of the city hall." No matter how hot or sweltering the day, he emerges from his private office fresh and clean. The reason? He has changes of clothes on call. Mayor Pro Tem John A. White previously was considered the best dressed, but no longer. The mayor yesterday was a symphony in blue and gray.

Smoke Menace Is Bad in City, LeCraw Says

100 Industrial Leaders Attend Opening of Convention.

Atlanta's smoke menace is as bad or worse than that of any city in the country, Mayor LeCraw said here yesterday at the opening session of the thirty-fifth annual convention of the Smoke Prevention Association of America.

More than 100 coal, railroad, and industrial men and weather bureau officials as well as members of smoke abatement boards from all parts of the country are attending the meeting at the Ansley hotel and discussions principally are based on proper steps to take to establish standard methods of measuring air pollution. Among the outstanding speakers will be Walter J. Moxom, senior meteorologist, United States Weather Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., who will discuss "Observation of Smoke Conditions in the City of St. Louis" at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Members Introduced. Members of local smoke abatement organizations were introduced yesterday following Mayor LeCraw's address of welcome and President Reinhard Kunz, of Milwaukee, Wis.; Vice President W. E. Koepfer, of Bluefield, W. Va., and Secretary-Treasurer Frank A. Chambers, of Chicago, Ill., also made brief talks. Speakers at the afternoon session included I. Hope Alexander, of Pittsburgh, Pa., on "Air Pollution and Public Health," Julian E. Tobey, of Cincinnati, Ohio, on "Outline of Program for Smoke Abatement of the Coal Producers," and Stanley C. Higgins, of Mount Hope, Va., on "Relationship of Volatile Content of Fuel to Smoke Production."

Slated to speak at 10:30 o'clock this morning are: R. J. Piersol, of the Illinois State Geological Survey; J. R. Fellows, of the University of Illinois; and Stewart Organ, consulting engineer, of Chicago, Ill. Other speakers at the afternoon session include Guy A. Heard, combustion engineer, of Chicago, on "Boiler Furnace Design," and Leslie R. Pyle, Locomotive Firebox Company, Chicago, on "Cyclone and Anderson Front Ends for Locomotives, Sparks Arresters Without Nettings."

Atlantans Present. Among the Atlantans attending the sessions are A. W. Jones, smoke inspector and chairman of the local arrangements of the convention; Mrs. Lucy Mims, president of the Atlanta Smoke Abatement League; Charles Farrar, secretary of the Atlanta Retail Coal Merchant Association; Walter N. Gallaher, past president of the Smoke Abatement League; Mrs. Raymond Wolf, president of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Dell Pounds, secretary of the Smoke Abatement Bureau, and John White, mayor pro tem.

Today in Atlanta Churches

Mrs. Lila Ellis will review "Manhold," by Phyllis Bentley, at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the Druid Hills Methodist church.

Junior Royal Ambassadors of the Oakhurst Baptist church will meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon, with Mrs. E. B. McGee counselor.

Circle No. 1 of the St. John Methodist church will sponsor a lecture by Dr. Pierce Harris, pastor of the First Methodist church, on "Citizenship That Counts" at 8 o'clock tonight at the St. John church.

Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Haygood Memorial Methodist church will meet at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the church.

Case Against Draftee Voided By U. S. Judge

Elbert Board Member Resigns in Protesting Action.

ATHENS, Ga., June 3.—(P)—A defense counsel demurred asking for dismissal of an indictment charging William Austin (Cy) Moore, former big league baseball pitcher, with assaulting the chairman of the Elbert County Selective Service Board was upheld by Judge Bascom S. Deaver in federal court here this afternoon.

The demurrer, argued in the judge's private chambers, was said to have contended that enough evidence had not been introduced against Moore to warrant an indictment.

An assistant to Attorney General T. Hoyt Davis said another indictment would probably be sought against Moore when another federal grand jury is convened.

The government charged Moore with striking Fred W. Auld, the selective service official, during an argument over the ex-ball player's classification. Moore formerly played with Brooklyn and Philadelphia in the National League and with Birmingham in the Southern Association.

In protest against the court action, Auld tonight telegraphed his resignation to Adjutant General Sion B. Hawkins, state director of selective service.

Asserting he had tried to treat all registrants with the same consideration, the county chairman wired Hawkins that if the government "cannot make out a case that will stick in court with the evidence in hand in this case I do not care to furnish the eyes to be blackened in the future by any dissatisfied registrant."

Sheep Raising Studied On Farm at Monticello MONTICELLO, Ga., June 3.—(P)—An on-the-farm study of sheep raising as a means of supplementing farm income absorbed attention of planters and agricultural workers of Jasper and seven surrounding counties today.

The group visited the farms of E. C. Kelly and J. S. Wilson, who told of the practicability of sheep raising in this section.

AROUND Atlanta

WITH THE CONSTITUTION STAFF

L. F. Dobbs, of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, will lecture and show a moving picture, "Shoulder Arms," dealing with national defense at the Decatur Rotary Club meeting at 12:30 o'clock today in the Candler hotel, it was announced by Clyde Walker, president.

Dr. H. Harvey Payne has been elected treasurer and Dr. W. Edgar Coleman, secretary, of the alumni association of the Atlanta-Southern Dental College.

Atlanta Opportunity School will hold graduation exercises at 8:30 o'clock Friday night in the city auditorium.

Atlanta Coin Club will meet at 8 o'clock tonight in the Henry Grady hotel.

Turpentine Plant Has $15,000 Fire

STATESBORO, Ga., June 3.—(P)—For more than four hours today, firemen battled a stubborn blaze which destroyed the main plant of the Lanier Turpentine Corporation. Damage was estimated at approximately $15,000. The still and rosin plant were destroyed, and in addition, rosin and spirits were burned. A. G. Crooms, of Pembroke, vice president of the concern, stated that there was no known cause for the fire.

Picture of a Man Discovering RICH'S SNACK BAR

He was just an innocent bystander (while his wife was buying some china) and his gaze rambled aimlessly around the fourth floor. SUDDENLY he vaulted two tables and narrowly escaped a head-on collision! He had discovered Rich's Snack Bar. Once there, in this gourmet's paradise, he eagerly reached for S. S. Pierce's famous Crepe Suzettes. Next he snared Martin's Pheasant a la Newburg. Schwegges Ginger Beer sent him into rhapsodies. When his wife found him he was reading the label on S. S. Pierce's Chicken Consomme Madrilene with Burgundy and tomatoes. And, there were two souls made happier! Why don't you enjoy this thrill of discovery?
